A POINTED POINT
ATLANTA, June 5, 1884.
OOD BALM CO.
I take pleasure in making the following statement. For four years I have been a great sufferer om Malarial Blood Poison, and for six months ve had Rheumatism to such an extent, that I s forced to use crutches a portion of the time nd could not raise my left arm to my head. I ed all the leading Blood remedies of the day, beer the attention of several first-class physicians, without benefit.
I became quite feeble and emaciated, having ry little appetite and poor digestion.
Calling at your office one day, I secured two bottles of B. B. B. and commenced its use at once, and before one bottle had been used, I felt a most wonderful change. Two bottles have given me almost entire relief. Rheumatism relieved and can use my arm as good as ever, cured the neuralgia of my head and all malarial poison is being rapidly removed, and I feel better than I have for six years. I tell you the truth I never used such a wonderful medicine in my life, as the affect has been magical. It has acted as a splendid tonic gave a good appetite and imparted quiet slumbers. I cheerfully recommend it as a quick Blood remedy.

MERIT WINS HONOR.
Science has indelibly enstamped its wonderful workings upon the tablets of memory, and to-day is emblazoned blessings are proudly acknowledged by thousands whose poisoned blood have been purified, and its crimsoned streams flushed the pale cheeks by the use of that wonder-working scientific pagent B. B. B.—Botanic Blood Balm!
One great feature of this remedy is the rapidity with which it conquers these blood poisons. It is a new departure in the treatment and cure of constitutional diseases. It eliminates the vitiated blood through the pores of the skin and all the secreting glands.
The modus operandi of this concentrated blood remedy is exactly as leading scientific medical gentlemen say that it should be in order to effect cures One bottle will convince any one of its power to cure.
Truthful evidence from hundreds of persons of unquestioned veracity relative to the wonderful efficacy of B. B. B. in the cure of all Blood and Skin Diseases furnished on application. Large bottles $1. Address. BLOOD BALM CO.

THE TREZEVANT CLAIM.

THE REPUBLICAN SENATORS FAIL TO KEEP FAITH.

The Trezevant Claim Made a Party Question, and Pigeon-Holed by Being Referred Back to the Committee—The House Rejects the Senate Consular Amendments.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—[Special.]—There was a sad exhibition of partisan prejudice in the senate to-day. Senator Brown's bill directing the payment to Georgia of the amount of the Trezevant claim, notwithstanding Comptroller Lawrence's adverse decision, was called up. Senator Hoar had reported the bill favorably and no evidence of opposition had appeared. Senator Brown made a clear statement of the case and Senator George presented an unanswerable legal argument in support of the bill. Senator Ingalls moved to recommit, evidently with the purpose to pigeon hole the bill in the committee. That motion was agreed to by a strict party vote. Senator Hoar was not present, but the republican senators who voted for the bill in committee virtually voted against it today. The Georgia senators will continue their efforts to pass the bill, but the republicans have tortured it into a party measure, and the prospect is not flattering. This is the same bill introduced by Mr. Hammond in the house where it has been favorably reported.

THE PAYMENT OF CLAIMS.

Mr. Brown Calls up the Trezevant Claim---An Amendment From Oregon.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The chair laid before the senate a message from the president transmitting the report of the secretary of state relating to the latest laws of the Mexican republic creating or modifying the zona libra, regarding the importation of merchandise.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Vance providing for the removal of the eastern Cherokee Indians into the Indian territory.

The senate took up and passed the house bill providing for the payment of claims audited by the treasury department during the past year, by virtue of the act of July 4, 1884, for the commissarial and quartermasters' supplies furnished to the army. The reading of the bill occupied considerable time, there being 105 printed pages of it. The claims are for various sums, ranging from $10 upward. A very large number of the beneficiaries of the bill are in East Tennessee.

Mr. Brown asked and obtained unanimous consent to take up the bill to require the payment in cash to the state of Georgia of $55,555 appropriated for that state by an act passed in May 1873, to refund to Georgia certain moneys expended for the common defense in 1777.

Mr. Dolph moved an amendment to include $55,000 for Oregon, and $495 for California, to refund the moneys expended by those states in the suppression of the Modoc hostilities in 1872 and 1873. A law had been passed, Mr. Dolph said, for the refunding to those two states of the amounts mentioned, but the secretary of the treasury had withheld them. He wanted to know why Oregon should be treated differently from the state of Georgia. After a long discussion upon the bill and amendment, Mr. Ingalls moved to recommit the bill to the committee on claims. It was then discovered that there was not a quorum present. The senate then adjourned till Monday.

A caucus of republican senators was held this morning upon the Mexican pension bill, at which barely a quorum was present. After a discussion of an hour's duration the subject was referred to the caucus committee to formulate a course of action.

THE POSTOFFICE BILL.

The House Rejects the Senate Amendments to the Consular Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—In the house on motion of Mr. Hewitt, a concurrent resolution was adopted authorizing the temporary exhibition in the capitol of the model of the pedestal of the Bartholdi statue.

On motion of Mr. Burns, of Missouri, the senate amendments to the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill were non-concurred in.

On motion of Mr. Follett, of Ohio, the senate amendments to the pension appropriation bill were non-concurred in.

A large number of private bills were reported and placed upon the calendar.

Mr. Pryor, of Alabama, then took the floor to conclude his speech on the electoral count bill.

Mr. Pryor laid down and argued in support of the proposition that the constitution, in the matter of ascertaining who had been elected president, had provided a board clothed with jurisdiction ample and sufficient to determine any questions involved in issue. That board was the senate and the house in joint convention, not present in their legislative capacity or as mere spectators to see the president of the senate count the electoral votes, but convened as a special board to explore the whole question from center to circumference, from top to bottom. The individual members of the board enjoyed equal power and were charged with similar duties, and in the exercises of those powers and the performance of those duties, all questions arising should be determined by a per capita vote. Mr. Pryor's speech attracted a good deal of attention, and when it closed he received the congratulations of many of his colleagues.

THE POSTOFFICE BILL.

Mr. Townsend, of Ill., submitted the conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill.

Mr. Townsend explained the provisions of the report. The senate, he said, had placed upon the bill twenty-two amendments. After several meetings of the conference committee, the points of disagreement had been narrowed down to five. The most important items upon which there had been an agreement were the following: Increasing by $500,000 the appropriation for compensation to postmasters, increasing by $125,000, the appropriation for the payment of clerks in postoffices, and appropriating $4,500 to pay the expenses of a delegate to the universal postal union. The senate conferees had made concessions to the amount of $775,000, while the house conferees had yielded to an amendment aggregating $814,500. The items on which no agreement had been reached were first, increasing the appropriation for the pay of letter carriers; second, increasing by $1,000,000 the appropriation for mail transportation on railroad routes; third, striking out the clause regulating compensation to land grant roads; fourth, appropriating $185,000 for special mail facilities, and fifth, increasing by $300,000 the appropriation for railway postoffice clerks. The two main points of disagreement were upon what were known as the railroad provisions. Unless these provisions were enacted into a law no legislation affecting the railroads of the country would be had from this congress. Everybody knows that the inter-state commerce bill was dead; the land grant forfeiture bills, which were being passed by the house, would find a grave in the committee rooms of the senate. Of this he was satisfied. The conference report was adopted, as far as the items are concerned, upon which an agreement has been arrived at.

Mr. Horr, of Michigan, moved that the house recede from its disagreement to the amendment increasing from $3,600,000 to $4,000,000 the appropriation for the pay of letter carriers. This was agreed to, 115 to 52, after some debate, so the item remains as fixed by the senate. The next point in dispute was the senate amendment increasing from $11,700,000 to $12,750,000 the appropriation for mail transportations on railroads. This was considered in connection with the amendment striking out the clause reducing the 5 per cent compensation to railroads for mail transportation, and providing that land grant roads and subsidy roads shall receive only fifty per cent of the compensation allowed other roads. In both of these amendments the house refused to concur. Without acting on the special facilities amendment, and the amendment increasing the appropriation for the railway postoffice clerks, the house took a recess until eight o'clock, the evening session to be for the consideration of pension bills.

The house, at its evening session, passed 76 pension bills, and at 10 p. m., adjourned.

AN OFFICE HARD TO FILL.

The Solicitorship of the Treasury Still Under Crape.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The vacancy which has existed in the office of the solicitor of the treasury since the death of Judge Raynor, March 5, has seriously affected the business of that office. The law provides that the bonds of the disbursing clerks, collectors of internal revenue, etc., shall be approved by the solicitor before those officers can enter on the discharge of their duties. At present there are several of this class now pending in the solicitor's office, including five collectors of internal revenue and the disbursing clerk of the postoffice department to succeed Colonel Burnside. It is understood that the president finds considerable difficulty in filling this office, owing to the fact that the appointment would only last a few months.

The senate in executive session yesterday, ratified the treaty for the protection of trademarks between the United States and Denmark; also, the action of the Paris convention of March last, for the protection of submarine cables. Adverse action was taken on the proposed accession of the United States to an international convention of industrial properties as signed at Paris in March 1883. The last named is better known as the patent rights treaty. It was not approved by the patent office authorities, and was reported adversely by the senate committee on foreign relations. It was held that its ratification would necessitate radical changes in the American system of patent laws, and would confer no adequate benefit in return.

A telegram received at the postoffice department from the postmaster at Wilmington, North Carolina, states that facts point strongly to the conclusion that the mail carrier on the Magnolia route, who reported that he had been robbed by highwaymen, on Monday last, stole the mail himself and concocted the story to avert suspicion.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Items of Interest About the Capital City--Current Comment.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—[Special.]—Little surprise has been occasioned by the order for a court martial in the case of Judge Advocate General Swaim. It was almost by accident that Swaim's crooked conduct in money matters came to light a few weeks ago. After a long series of dealings with Mr. A. E. Bateman, a banker of this city, there came a misunderstanding about the payment of five thousand dollars for which Bateman claimed that Swaim was responsible. After reporting him for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman Bateman tried to have the matter hushed up on the ground that he and Swaim had satisfactorily adjusted their differences. The charges had been made public and affecting the honor of one of the highest army officials they had clearly passed beyond the domain of personal controversy. The court of inquiry made developments which left the secretary of war and the president no alternative but to order a court martial. Swaim has never borne the reputation of a model officer either in active service or in his service as judge advocate general. He was elevated to that position by the partiality of President Garfield and had succeeded in making himself obnoxious to the public generally. He is at least in a position to do his country a service, though it will be an involuntary one. His court martial will doubtless bring out evidence to involve other officials now high in executive favor. The war department has been accused of directions more serious than favoritism which has distributed its favors at the bidding of political influence, regardless of merit. Little affairs like the impending Swaim court martial portray republican methods vividly. Recently Washington has had several suggestions on this line. The disgrace of Colonel Burnside, the disbursing officer of the postoffice department, showed up a model republican official. Fresh on this came the decision on the primary investigation of the Swaim case. Almost every day the Springer investigating committee sits at the capitol hearing shameful developments concerning the department of justice. The star-route business has grown into such a tangle of fraud that the chairman of the investigating committee thinks it will require his committee to work hard all the summer to get at the bottom facts. On the eve of a great appeal for the confidence of the country, the republican party has some pleasing facts to contemplate. Not a department of the government could probably stand a thorough investigation. With all the safeguards now thrown about defaulters, with their friends all around them ready to cover up and condone their sins, instances of official corruption are flaring into the face of the public almost every day. What would happen if a change of administration precipitated a general cleaning up in every department?

INVESTING IN THE SOUTH.

A Coming Speech From Senator Brown--The Future of the Indian.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—[Special.]—Senator Fair has turned his attention to the south as a field for profitable investment. He is already interested in a big railroad enterprise in West Virginia, and thinks of going further south to take a view of the financial condition and opportunities. The senator has forty-odd millions, most of which is in ready money, ready to drop into any inviting locality.

When the senate shall resume the consideration of the Mormon bill an interesting speech is expected from Senator Brown, in reply to Senator Hoar's last effort on this question. These gentlemen have often had things to say to each other in the senate, and the Massachusetts man has a profound respect for the Georgian.

The senate committee on Indian affairs has planned a long trip through the Indian territory during the coming congressional vacation. Their purpose is to study the condition and needs of the Indians. Senator Dawes, chairman of the committee, has very progressive views on the question of Indian progress. He thinks the Carlisle school is doing a great work and has already demonstrated that the Indian is quick to learn and is susceptible of the highest degree of intellectual culture. In this opinion he is opposed by several senators, but most extremely by Senator Ingalls, who denies that there is any future of great value possible for the average Indian. The senator believes firmly, however, in the future of the negro.

The following persons have been recognized by the president as vice consuls of Brazil:

Charles S. Langdon, Darien, Georgia.
Barton Meyers, Norfolk and Newport News, Virginia.
William H. Adams, Savannah.
Charles F. Huchet, Charleston.
Herman R. Baldwin, Richmond.
Augustus Baratle, St. Mary's and Satilla, Georgia.
S. G. Dearing, Jacksonville, Cedar Keys and Fernandina, Florida.

TURNING TO CLEVELAND.

THE EYES OF THE NATION ON NEW YORK'S GOVERNOR.

The Flower Movement Not Seriously in His Way—Bayard to Reprint His Dover Speech as a Matter of Information—The Massachusetts Independents—Notes, Etc.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—[Special.]—The free discussion of all the democratic presidential candidates continues, with the tide still setting toward Cleveland. Mr. Bayard's friends have procured a copy of his Dover speech, and will have it freely circulated to counteract the impression that it contains secession ideas. He says openly that he still stands on that speech. The action of the New York convention next Wednesday is anxiously awaited. Flower has worked up a heavy following as the second choice, while Tilden was receiving unanimous support. His friends here insist that he will get the bulk of the New York delegation. On the other hand it is well argued that New York will not throw away the chance of naming the first man on the ticket in any such way. Nobody can reasonably predict Flower's nomination, whereas the solid support of New York would almost surely place Cleveland at the head of the ticket.

AT WORK FOR CLEVELAND IN NEW YORK.

The situation has materially changed since the Tilden letter. Flower will not hold all the delegation he claims. Tilden is believed to prefer Cleveland, and Daniel Manning, as soon as he received Tilden's letter, went to work for Cleveland in his newspaper, and among influential democrats. Expression of outside sentiment in favor of Cleveland will bear heavily on the convention. He has never made an effort to obtain a single delegation, but I find the general faith that the sober deliberations of that body will result in his presentation as New York's candidate. At any rate an uninstructed delegation will be chosen and at Chicago Flower will be practically unknown. Edward Cooper, who is here, says the best democratic sentiment of New York is turning with great unanimity toward Cleveland. Dorsheimer corrects the statement that he prefers Bayard, and indorses Cleveland as the best possible nominee. Flower has been warmly backed by Tammany, and it was reported that Tammany would not support Cleveland. This statement is contradicted by advices from New York, and by members of Tammany now in Washington. John Kelly has recently shown a disposition to regain favor with the party. He will not kick against any choice the New York democracy may make.

THE WEST MUST COME IN.

Mr. Voorhees and a few western men still show a disposition to press McDonald for the first place, but the overwhelming sentiment has set in favor of an eastern man.

Senator Brown says he regards Cleveland as very strong.

Senator Colquitt thinks Bayard or Cleveland must be nominated.

Mr. Clements says it looks like Cleveland.

Mr. Blount thinks Cleveland would be an excellent selection.

Such are the opinions of a great majority of the southern congressmen. The Missouri delegation is reported as almost solid for Cleveland, and he is a big favorite among the New York congresimen. The members generally are reluctant to express preference.

THE STAR FOR CLEVELAND.

The Star this evening says:

"Had the democratic convention been held yesterday Governor Cleveland would have been nominated perhaps by acclamation. As it is the democrats have still three weeks to think about it, and in that time the conditions of the problem may be altered. It is almost certain, however, that Cleveland will go before the convention as the choice of his state.

TILDEN MEANS SAY.

St. Louis, June 13.—The republicans of this city, in referring to Tilden's letter having interpreted it to mean that when Mr. Tilden is nominated he will not refuse to be the candidate of the democrats, the Evening Chronicle telegraphed to Tilden asking him if that was the proper construction to be placed on his letter. The telegram was referred by Mr. Tilden to Daniel Manning, chairman of the independents, direct our committee to call a convention in such manner as they may seem expedient, after the democratic candidates have been nominated, and not later than August 1st, to take such further action as may to them seem necessary to carry out the sense of this meeting with practical effect.

PRESIDENT ELIOT'S SPEECH.

President Eliot, of Harvard, in his speech seconding the fourth resolution, said:

I must confess that it will be only by a dispensation of Providence that the democratic party will give us the candidate we want. If we put on our platform their candidate, it will be better for them and perfectly satisfactory to us, but political progress is to be only by the conflict of national parties, and as a rule two national parties. Therefore I hope that out of this meeting will grow a new party, as one was grown years ago. We want to found a new party in our country, a party of national principle, and one which looks forward to national triumph."

In conformity to the above resolutions a committee of 100 was appointed, headed by Charles R. Codman, chairman; Charles W. Eliot, James Freeman Clarke, Martin Brunmer, Julius H. Seelye, I. W. Higginson, William Endicott, Jr., Henry Lee, Henry L. Pierce, John Felt Osgood, Edwin Atkinson, William Perkins, Ezra Farnsworth, Phineas Pierce, Alex. Cochran, Charles Francis Adams, Jr., Richard H. Dana and Josiah Quincy. A committee of twenty-five was appointed to proceed to New York to confer with the independent republicans of New York on June 17th. The committee is headed by Colonel Codman. Letters from Congressman Lyman and other sympathizers with the movement were read.

CLEVELAND'S CHANCE.

The Governor Said to be Ahead in the Race for Control of the State Convention.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 13.—The Argus, Dan Manning's organ, in its leading article, accepts Mr. Tilden's declination as final and absolute, and formally presents Governor Cleveland as a candidate, and urges the state convention to instruct delegates for him. Mr. Tilden's letter has been anticipated so long by the friends of both Mr. Flower and Governor Cleveland that its effect has been discounted. They have been working quietly, but earnestly, for their respective candidates. The governor's supporters have the advantage over Mr. Flower of thorough organization. They have three-fourths of the state committee and the county and congress district organizations are generally in their hands.

Congressman Dorsheimer or Senator Titus will present Governor Cleveland's name to the convention. Messrs. Manning, Titus, Dorsheimer and McLoughlin are mentioned for delegates at large.

BARLOW BOLTS BLAINE.

Independent Republicans Ready for Anything to Defeat the Nominee.

NEW YORK, June 13.—"Since my return from Chicago," said General Francis C. Barlow yesterday, "I have seen enough to know that the best republicans will never vote for a man with any such political record as Mr. Blaine has. The opposition to Blaine which has shown itself all over the country is not due to personal feeling, or to the disappointment of politicians, but to the fact that the man placed at the head of the republican party is so palpably the wrong man that not even party feeling or political enthusiasm can make the intelligent republicans swallow the dose."

"Do you think this anti-Blaine movement will hold out?"

"Yes, sir; it will gain force every day. At 4 o'clock on Friday next a meeting will be held here in my office, of the members of the independent republican committee to Chicago, to consider what steps shall be taken to defeat the nominee, and to make arrangements for the nomination or support of a good ticket. No action will probably be taken toward nominating an independent candidate until after the democratic convention; and if a good ticket is nominated that will probably settle the question, as I have not the slightest doubt the entire independent vote, together with a great many hitherto republican votes, are now at the disposition of the democrats if they nominate the right man.

"Our meeting will have only a small attendance, as it will comprise only the members of the committee, but it will be followed by a very much larger one, at which many men who are prominent in their opposition to Blaine will take part. This meeting will be held on Tuesday next, either in the Windsor hotel or in Mott Memorial hall."

Railroad Accidents.

BIRMINGHAM, June 13.—[Special.]—Henry Green, a negro car coupler on the Louisville and Nashville road, was run over by an engine and killed at Verbena last night. A freight train on the same road ran off the track last night at Verbena demolishing five cars and seriously injuring the conductor.

MASSACHUSETTS INDEPENDENTS.

Unalterably Opposed to Blaine, and Willing to Take Cleveland.

BOSTON, June 13.—In accordance with the call issued by the independents of Massachusetts for a mass meeting of all the veterans opposed to the nomination of Blaine and Logan, a meeting took place to-day. The gathering was composed mostly of independents, although many republicans and democrats were among those present. A few gentlemen were in attendance, headed by President Eliot, of Harvard, who looked forward to the formation from this small beginning of a new party. Addresses were lavishly applauded. Henry L. Pierce called the meeting to order. He said the nominations made at Chicago were not up to the high standard of the republican party. He regretted as much as any one the train of events that had brought about this result, but it was incumbent on those who desired a government free from jobbery, free from jingorism, to protest against the candidates presented. He concluded by presenting the list of permanent officers of the meeting: President, Charles R. Codman; vice presidents, Julius H. Seelye, Charles A. Eliot, J. Huntington, Wolcott H. M. Dexter, Hy L. Pierce, Martin Braummer, Stephen W. Weld, Joseph H. Walker, William H. Forbes; Estes House. Samuel Hoar, David B. Flint, John S. Farlow, William H. Fox, William Martin, William M. Adams and Moses Williams; secretaries, Hamilton A. Hull, George C. Hodges and H. W. Chaplin.

CRITICISING THE REPUBLICANS.

Codman, upon taking the chair, criticized the platform of the republicans because it declares that this is a nation and not a league of states. They tell us, the speaker said, that they favor popular education. What party does not? We propose hereafter to judge the parties by their acts as well as their words. Referring to the candidates nominated at Chicago, Mr. Codman said:

The political parties hitherto have held that their candidates, like Cæsar's wife, should be above suspicion, but his record, which eight years ago the people watched, and those transactions in which it is said the speaker of the house of representatives had been implicated, have been passing out of public recollection. The Chicago convention has pulled them forth again. They will be laid before the country for its consideration. When a great party which holds office becomes unfaithful, what are we to do? First, we are to see whether the great opposition party is fit to take its place. I have no fear for the future of this country, no matter what political party gets into power. The democratic party has its opportunity now. I suppose we may say we have no favors to ask and no bargains to make, but there are statesmen in the democratic party for whom independent republicans may vote without a blush. If the democratic party want our votes they know how they are to be obtained. If they do not we know how to withhold them. It may be our duty to stand up and be counted as an independent party. I know that third parties are apt to be short lived, but sometimes before they die they do great things.

CHEERING FOR CLEVELAND.

Colonel T. W. Higginson, said the civil service plank in the republican platform meant nothing because it found its representatives in Blaine and Logan. He was not afraid that the democratic party had so far lost its head as to make a fool of itself in the coming nomination. Whatever the past of the party which still retains in its list men like Cleveland and Bayard, we cannot afford to speak of it with contempt.

The allusion to Cleveland was loudly cheered.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Higginson then presented the following resolutions, which were adopted:

Whereas, we are met in conference as republicans and independents of Massachusetts, to take action in opposition to the nomination of James G. Blaine for president, and John A. Logan for vice president of the United States, and, whereas, these candidates were selected in absolute disregard of the reform sentiment of the nation, and of the best political methods and principles to which we are unalterably opposed,

Resolved, That it is our own conviction that the country will be better served by opposing these nominations than by supporting them.

Resolved, That we look with solicitude to the coming nominations by the democratic party. They have the proper men. We hope they will put them before the people for election.

Resolved, That an executive committee of 100 be appointed, with full powers.

Resolved, That whatever action be taken by the democratic party in Chicago, we, republicans and independents, direct our committee to call a convention in such manner as they may seem expedient, after the democratic candidates have been nominated, and not later than August 1st, to take such further action as may to them deem necessary to carry out the sense of this meeting with practical effect.

PRESIDENT ELIOT'S SPEECH.

President Eliot, of Harvard, in his speech seconding the fourth resolution, said:

I must confess that it will be only by a dispensation of Providence that the democratic party will give us the candidate we want. If we put on our platform their candidate, it will be better for them and perfectly satisfactory to us, but political progress is to be only by the conflict of national parties, and as a rule two national parties. Therefore I hope that out of this meeting will grow a new party, as one was grown years ago. We want to found a new party in our country, a party of national principle, and one which looks forward to national triumph."

In conformity to the above resolutions a committee of 100 was appointed, headed by Charles R. Codman, chairman; Charles W. Eliot, James Freeman Clarke, Martin Brunmer, Julius H. Seelye, I. W. Higginson, William Endicott, Jr., Henry Lee, Henry L. Pierce, John Felt Osgood, Edwin Atkinson, William Perkins, Ezra Farnsworth, Phineas Pierce, Alex. Cochran, Charles Francis Adams, Jr., Richard H. Dana and Josiah Quincy. A committee of twenty-five was appointed to proceed to New York to confer with the independent republicans of New York on June 17th. The committee is headed by Colonel Codman. Letters from Congressman Lyman and other sympathizers with the movement were read.

THE TEXAS CONVENTION.

The Delegates Instructed to Use Their Own Discretion in Chicago.

FORT WORTH, TEX., June 13.—When the democratic state convention reassembled Thursday, the delegates had not recovered from the depressing effect of Tilden's letter. A motion to reconsider yesterday's vote instructing the delegates to vote for Tilden and Hendricks, was tabled by a vote of 301 to 182. Notwithstanding the defeat of this motion, a resolution was immediately adopted requesting the delegates to use their own judgment in the selection of candidates.

The following delegates were elected at large: Ex-Governor Hubbard, Congressman D. C. Giddings, Judge T. J. Brown, Peter Smith, mayor of Fort Worth. District delegates—First, A. F. Holt and J. N. Henderson; second, T. T. Gammage and D. A. Nunn; third, H. K. Retz and H. M. Cate; fourth, J. B. Donahoe and J. M. Adams; fifth, Silas Hare and G. B. Meade; sixth, J. W. Ferris and W. P. McFarland; seventh, N. Gussett and C. C. Sweeney; eighth, W. H. Burgess and K. L. Ford; ninth, L. C. Alexander and E. J. Simpkins; tenth, Henry Erall and E. J. Dwyer; eleventh, J. R. Fleming and C. K. Bell. The senators and democratic representatives in congress from Texas recently united in a request that their names be not considered in the matter of selecting delegates to Chicago. The absence of congressional names from the list is, therefore, explained. The democratic state convention to nominate a governor and other state officers meets on August 19th, at Austin.

Burned to Death in a Barn.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 13.—Early Wednesday morning an unknown person entered the barn on the corner of Centre avenue and Taylor street, with a lighted candle and lighted the hay. Fred Odell, an expressman, aged 50 years, and a young man whose name is unknown, who were sleeping in the barn were burned to death.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS.

FLAT MARKET REPORTS FROM ENGLAND.

The Business Failures of the Past Week in the United States and Canada—Slanders Circulated on a New York Banker—The Penn Bank—The East Tennessee Statement, Etc.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Business failures throughout the country for the week ending to-day, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., number for the United States 203, and for Canada 25, a total of 228; compared with the total of 215 last week, an increase of 13 failures. The casualties are light in New England and the western states, but an increase is noted in the middle, southern and Pacific states, and in Canada.

Hunt, Stewart & Co., cotton factors of New Orleans, have failed. Stewart states that the failure was caused by a misunderstanding concerning the acceptances of drafts. The firm expects to settle all claims in full and to resume in a few days. W. W. Woodward, Jr., and James Stillman, of New York, were partners.

THE EAST TENNESSEE STATEMENT.

The statement of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad was submitted today. The gross earnings from July 1st, 1883, to June 1st, 1884, were $4,158,045; net earnings $1,736,413; May and June estimated fixed charges $1,473,121. All the fixed charges of the company falling due in 1884, have been provided for, and will be paid at maturity. The entire floating debt of the company has been taken up by the directors and their friends, who have accepted ten-year six per cent debentures in payment at par, without deduction or commission. There has been no increase of the floating debt during the past year, and none is anticipated. The Central trust company will pay the July coupons.

THE PENN BANK.

PITTSBURG, June 13.—A hearing was had this morning in the cases of Thos. J. Watson, an oil broker, and Cashier Reiber, charged with conspiring to defraud the Penn bank. President Riddle was indicted on information, but waived a hearing and gave bond. The testimony was mainly a repetition of the facts already published, but tended to show that Riddle, Watson and Reiber were associated in oil speculations and overdrafts. Fictitious firms represented their transactions in it. One of the fictitious accounts, opened with an overdraft of $125,000, and at the closing of the bank was over $400,000 overdrawn. Thomas J. Watson's individual account was $97,000 overdrawn. The charges against the overdrawn accounts were made by the direction of President Riddle, and Reiber was cognizant of the condition of the accounts. The testimony for the defense will be heard next Friday. Assignee Warner to-day stated that he is getting the affairs of the bank in shape, and it is now thought that instead of paying only two cents it will pay twenty-five cents on the dollar.

A SLANDERER HISSED.

LONDON, June 13.—A flurry of indignation has been caused in financial circles by an incident which has just come to light. Raphael & Sons, stock brokers of this city, cabled L. Von Hoffman & Co., well known bankers of Wall street, New York, reflecting on the London credit of the great American banking house of Morton, Rose & Co., of which Morton, Bliss & Co. are the New York correspondents. Morton, Rose & Co. heard of this, and cabled the Raphaels to account. The latter gave the aggrieved bankers satisfaction, withdrew all reflections on their credit, and declared that they had been misinformed. The matter was noised abroad, and this morning the stock brokers hissed Raphael as he entered the stock exchange, for circulating a slander.

THE CHARLESTON BANK FAILURE.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 13.—Yesterday's excitement over the failure of the State bank has somewhat subsided, but many depositors are much agitated over the loss of their money, while others take matters more easily and hope for the best. There was a light run on the Kanawha Valley bank early to-day, but all calls were met and the run was stopped after a few minutes. Colonel Hogeman and Colonel Couch, the assignees of the State bank, are getting out a statement which will be made public in a few days. The arrest of the officials were reported to-night, but up to a late hour no one was in custody.

A COLOSSAL BANK FAILURE IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The Star publishes the following:

Since the appointment of the committee on behalf of the creditors of the late banking firm of Middleton & Co., and the evidence submitted by Mr. Dichman, of the firm of Dichman & Co., No. 20 Wall street, New York, formerly Middleton Dichman & Co., the disclosures show the failure not only to be one of the most disgraceful but one of the most disastrous on record. Property left for safe keeping, good margins on stocks, charity funds, all of the deposits, and in fact everything, have been sweptaway and used by this firm until it is doubtful if it pays a cent or even a mill on the dollar. It is shown that they have been given funds to make purchases which they have simply passed to their own credit and spent. A New York house produced to the creditors to-day original letters from Middleton & Co. proving this fact in several instances beyond all question. In the language of Dichman, "Westry Middleton has probably kept two-thirds of the accounts in his head this explains possibly the misery in his head," of which he has complained so much lately. To a reporter of a morning paper he insists that a statement of Dichman does him a great injustice, and that the books will come out all right." The answer to this is that Middleton seems to have known little or nothing of their books, for they are in great confusion. The bookkeeper and assignee say the books have not been settled for over ten years, though he has repeatedly urged the firm to have them balanced. He protests that he never had any knowledge of the disposition of the securities of the bank, but kept his books only from a blotter and from memoranda placed on the spindle. Dichman, when asked what in his belief had become of the missing $300,000 or $400,000, said he did not believe Middleton had speculated in stocks or had lost it on bad loans here, as suggested by the creditors. In fact he was very open in his expression of his opinion as to what had become of some of the deposits, and a large amount of the securities, and openly urged that all legal steps to find where these funds were. If the Middletons had any defense or explanations to make, they could very easily appear, he said before the creditors committee and show if those large sums were lost through failure in the ordinary business channels, or had been as openly charged, deliberately stolen. The largest deposit which was swept away was that of Hutchins & Tate, exceeding $115,000, and the next highest is that of a well known official, amounting to $61,000. A number of civil suits have been instituted, and some of the sufferers were before the grand jury yesterday endeavoring to secure the indictment of the Middletons for obtaining money under false pretenses. Developments not yet made public promise some very ugly features. S. E. Middleton protests that he had no knowledge of the use of the securities of the bank, which he charges upon his partner.

SUIT AGAINST BUCK GRANT

NEW YORK, June 13.—Suit has been brought by Leopold Levy, as assignee of Moritz Barrer, against Ulysses S. Grant, Jr., to recover $10,000 paid on a contract to purchase property in Seventy-third street, near Third avenue, which it is alleged the defendant afterwards fraudulently conveyed, without consideration, to Jerome B. Chaffee and Sarah Cadliffe. The defense is a general denial. The property is said to be worth about $45,000.

By some means a son of Mr. Marshal Perkins got beyond his depth and was drowned. Later in the day the body was recovered.

Jackson News: An interesting and instructive lecture was delivered at the Methodist church in this place last Sunday night, by Rev. J. L. Lyons, of Jacksonville, Fla., who for a number of years was missionary to Syria and Palestine. His lecture was replete with interesting incidents of travel and descriptions of ancient cities mentioned in biblical history, having visited many of the ruins in Palestine and Egypt. Among the relics of past ages gathered in that pre-historic country, he exhibited an Egyptian "tear-bottle," a cedar bar from Mount Lebanon, olive wood from Mount Carmel, linnets from Galilee, a handkerchief on which was embroidered the Lord's prayer in Arabic language, a scrap of linen 3,000 years old prepared and used for embalming mummies, from the catecombs of Egypt, of which the editor of the News has a small piece.

The News also says: Numerous negros have been hanged in Georgia in the past few years, for the crime of raping white women, as well as colored, but it don't seem to deter the "brother in black" from committing this heinous crime, and almost every week some case is reported through the press of an attempt by some negro to commit rape upon the person of some respectable white woman or girl, and it is possible that not half of the instances that occur find their way into the public prints, from the fact that many of the females thus assaulted, dread the scandal and publicity consequent upon making it known. It is doubtful whether this crime can be surppressed by the rigors of the law, even if it could be faithfully executed, for the reason that technicalities leave loopholes for escape. While lynch law is indiscriminating, it is certain in its effects, and probably the right method of dealing with colored rapists.

Gainesville Press: Mr. T. H. Jones, out on the Oconee river, has a chicken hatched with only one leg. This is a kind of enterprise that we don't like to see encouraged. "Drum sticks" are always in demand, especially when a meeting of any sort is in progress, and if the gentleman intends to encourage this kind of chicken raising we must put in our protest, for if it is not stopped the supply of "drum sticks" would soon fall short of the demand and this would be a calamity to the Methodist preachers of our land.

The Wilson-Long murder trial in Morganton was set for last Thursday morning. On the 15th of July, 1883, Thomas A. Wilson and Bud Long, a desperate fellow, became involved in a difficulty in which Long was shot, dying in a few minutes, and a true bill was found against Wilson for the murder of Long. The evidence was voluminous and conflicting. Some of the witnesses swore that the defendant was endeavoring to retreat and that deceased followed him up and in trying to get possession of the pistol fired it and killed himself; others swore that defendant pointed the pistol at deceased and fired it. The defendant's statement was clear. He said it was purely an accident, and there were but few who did not believe he spoke the truth. George N. Lester, of Atlanta, then began his arguments. A number of ladies made their appearance in the courtroom, among them the estimable young wife of defendant, carrying in her arms their innocent little babe; tears were trickling down her cheeks. Judge Lester reviewed the evidence, C. D. Phillips closed the argument for the defense. He said that it might be asserted that he was interested. He said he felt for the daughter of the man that had held him in his early struggles (defendant's wife being the daughter of ex-Congressman E. W. Chastain) that he wanted to see Thos. A. Wilson walk the streets as free as yore. His eloquence drew tears from those who seldom weep. At about 5 o'clock the jury retired and after having been out about twenty-one hours, the jury filed into the box and the verdict was read aloud, "not guilty," and everybody seemed satisfied and Thos. A. Wilson was once more a free man.

Greensboro Journal: This year being the centennial anniversary of the settlement of Greensboro, the Home Journal of last week suggested the appropriateness of its public commemoration. Greene county is replete with interesting and thrilling historical incidents and events, which still linger in the memory of some whose fathers long since passed away. More than fifty years ago the writer spent his first night in Greene. It was a grand old country then. It is a grand old county now, in spite of the changes that have come over the land and people. Let her sons and daughters therefore suitably celebrate the centennial and anniversary. Several individuals have requested us to urge the matter upon the consideration of the people, which is our apology for keeping the subject before them. The moral and social effect of such a commemoration would doubtless be pleasant and salutary, by bringing the old and young folks together, to talk over the past and forecast the future.

Of the attempted assassination of Mr. Thomas Wilhelt in Columbia county, Dr. Holliday says:

Mr. Wilhelt's actions had been peculiar for some time and on Friday night he refused to retire for some time after his usual hour, and after living time, as he thought, for his family to be asleep he left the house from a door on the back side. His wife watched him go to a barn near the house and opening the door went inside. After he had been absent several minutes she went to the barn and found him lying on the floor in a puddle of his own blood which was still pouring from the wound in his temple.

Louisville News: Sunday morning a negro named Peter Jackson, who lives on Dr. Salter' place near Bartow, shot his wife with a pistol, and she died Monday evening. The ball struck in the left side just under the arm. It seems that Peter has been threatening his wife for several months. Last Saturday night he told her he would kill her, and Sunday morning after a little quarrel he carried out his threat. After the shooting he started off but was caught by several negroes. They were greatly excited and perhaps would have swung him to a tree if the whites had not interferred. A commitment trial was held before L. A. Tarver, and Peter was brought to Louisville Monday morning and lodged in jail. That makes two negroes who are now in jail from Bartow charged with murder.

The result was the bursting of the barrel near the breech and the mutilation of his hand. Another placed and held the muzzle of his gun square against a piece of plate window glass, and fired the charge, powder and bullets. The glass was shattered, so was the gun barrel. Another instance was that of an experimenter who heard that a candle could be fired from the barrel of a gun through an inch board. He drove a candle into the muzzle of a gun, fired, and the explosion split the barrel almost its entire length, and did not even drive the candle from the muzzle. Still another burst of a gun barrel was caused by the use of wet grass for a wad, well rammed over a charge of shot.

Mr. Henry Fleetwood, who has been living alone in a little hut in the woods near Chauncey the last four years, has a very strange history. The Hawkinsville Dispatch says he came from Telfair county about five years ago, and worked a year with Mr. James Fletcher near here. When he left Mr. Fletcher's farm he built a little hut, nine feet square and eight feet high, where he has since lived. When a young man he was a desperate fighter, and "licked" every man that interfered with him, until Mr. Thomas Ryeroft succeeded in vanquishing him. Since then he has been so completely cowed that he quit fighting and was nicknamed "Blueford," which name he has borne ever since. He looks to be at least seventy-five years old, but says he is only sixty-two. About two years ago he was robbed of $18 and all of his chickens. This greatly troubled him, as he was very feeble, and had to work hard for his money, which he said he was saving for "hard times." When he first came to this county some of the young men would hide near his house at night to hear him talk to himself. He would read the Bible and pray awhile, and then begin laughing and talking over his past courtships, and repeat some very funny incidents.

Tribulations of a Village Postmaster.

From the Perry, Ga., Journal.

"Good morning, senator," was the salutation of your reporter to one of the cleverest officials that handle the mail bags of your Uncle Samuel, and who lives not a thousand miles from this point. "How do you find yourself?"

"Not well, sir, not well. Been sick a month, and this work is not a sovereign balm for a sick man. You never tried to run a postoffice, did you, my friend? No, I know you never did. You've got too much good nature left in you for that. Job, you know, was a very patient man. They tried him a good many ways, but if he had been called to the position of village postmaster, his hope of Heaven would have gradually waned, in my humble opinion. You've no idea how many——"

"Is there anything here for Miss Sallie?" was the inquiry, just at this juncture, of a modern suffrage-slinging sovereign.

"Anything for whom?"

"Miss Sallie. Don't you know Miss Sallie?"

"Miss Sallie h—l! I know a thousand Miss Sallies. What Miss Sallie are you talking about?"

"Miss Sallie what lives at Mars Henry's."

"Mars Henry who?"

"Mars Henry Williams down in the 14th deestrick."

"Then you want Miss Sallie Williams, or Mrs. Sallie Williams' mail. Which is it?"

"Don't want neither. It's Miss Sallie Johnson, Mars Henry's wife's sister."

"Well, why didn't you say so at first?" said the senator, in a tone that of voice that didn't indicate a frame of mind exactly suitable to conducting a prayer meeting.

"Now, all this is very soothing to the feelings of a sick man, don't you think?" This interrogatory was addressed to your reporter by the senator, having served or dismissed the inquirer for mail.

We nodded an assent, and suggested that his station was a very good place for the observation of the many phases of human nature.

"Yes," he replied, "for a well man with plenty of leisure, I expect it would be, but when I'm pressed business and half sick, and an educated idiot comes up to bore, delay and bedevil me, the study loses its interest. Why, only yesterday a fellow I'd never seen before came to the window, pressed his way in through the crowd and asked: "Is there any letters for me?" "What name, sir?" said I. "Jones," said he. "Will you please be good enough to give me your initials, your given name, your full name, Mr. Jones?" "Henry Preston Jones," he answered, as though he was surprised at my ignorance.

Our official friend had reached this point in his narrative, when he was interrupted by a call from a colored moke about the size of a lump of coal. "I want twenty-five cents worth of stamps." "What kind of stamps?', "Stamps for a letter." Who wants these stamps?" "Mr. Smith; says he'll hand you the money to-morrow." "Tell Mr. Smith the post office department don't do a credit business, and tell him we have all sorts and sizes of stamps for the cash."

Here we bid the senator good-bye, mentally resolved not to compete with him in his application for re-appointment.

A Huge Nest of Rattlesnakes.

From the Eastman, Ga., Times.

On Monday evening last while Masters Leon and Tommie Miller and Frank and Howard Whiddon were hunting huckleberries in the branch on the west side of town, nearly opposite the residence of Mr. W. B. Whiddon, they discovered a huge rattlesnake under a log. Instead of becoming frightened and "vamooshing the ranch," as most youngsters would have done, the boys armed themselves with poles and with an unbroken front, charged upon his snakeship, and in a short time he lay a victim at their feet with a smashed head. The boys were naturally proud over their victory, and determined to carry the snake to show to their parents, and had balanced it on a stick, when they were surprised to see a smaller one emerging from its mouth followed by another, and still another, until thirty, by actual count, had made their appearance, all of which were promptly dispatched.

Miss Goldwire followed in a "cradle song," after which there was another quartette by Misses Goldwire, Holmes, Clarke and Brewer. A vocal trio by Misses Lizzie Morgan, Carrie Williamson and Professor De La Croix, was received with great enthusiasm, and had to be repeated before the audience could be satisfied. The quartette, "Invitation to the waltz," by Misses Woodbridge, Palmer, Williamson and Dabney, was executed with great ability. The vocal solo, "Ah, My Child" by Miss Lowry was finely rendered.

The exercises concluded with the chorus "Queen of Night" in which Misses Lizzie Morgan, Carrie Williamson and Ida Nevin appeared as soloists.

JACK BARRETT REPRIEVED.

A Colored Preacher who Escapes the Gallows for a Few Days.

PERRY, GA., June 13.—The execution of Jack Barrett, which was to have taken place here to-day, did not occur, owing to the reprieve of the murderer by Governor McDaniel. The reprieve postpones the event until the 11th of July next, when there is no doubt of it taking place. The story of the crime for which Barrett is to be hanged has in it a spice of romance. On the night of Tuesday, 12th of February last, a negro man named Dave Bowman was shot and killed in the eastern portion of Houston county. An old negro man named Jack Barrett was charged with the killing, was arrested, and at commitment trial before Houston county court was remitted to jail to await trial before Houston superior court. Before the killing Jack Barrett and Dave Bowman were at enmity, an intimacy between Bowman and Barrett's wife being the cause. Barrett had repeatedly warned Bowman to let his wife alone, and threatened to kill him if he did not. For this purpose Barrett attempted to borrow a gun and ammunition, and finally purchased a gun, and cut some lead into square pieces to be used for this purpose. Some of these pieces of lead were found in a tin box under his house. On the Tuesday night named above Bowman was shot by some one standing among the bushes, as he was passing along the road from one house to another on the Fort plantation. Death resulted from the wound in a short while. Though on the same plantation, Barrett did not go near Bowman after the shot was fired. These facts were proven circumstantially on the trial, and it is doubtful if Barrett could have been convicted of murder but for his own confession before the court. It was further shown that the two had talked together on Sunday before the murder and amicably adjusted the trouble between them. In a recent conversation Barrett said that he killed Bowman in the heat of passion, having just previously overheard Bowman arrange to meet his (Jack's) wife at a certain place. The fatal shot was fired when Bowman reached that point. Jack further says he is not guilty of murder, because he did not intend to kill Bowman, only to hurt him and thus force him to quit bothering his wife. Jack was not living with his wife at that time, though he says they would have "made up" but for the interference of Bowman. Jack has been a constant reader of his Bible since his conviction. On Monday he dictated his farewell song, and two others he learned many years ago, from a book, and he says these hymns are not in the books now used. He says he will give them with his Bible to his daughter. Jack says he was born March 30, 1836, has been preaching for 20 years, and was ordained a minister of the Methodist church 14 years ago at Mt Zion church in Bibb county.

THE DAWSON COMMENCEMENT.

Eloquent Speech by Hon. W. M. Hawkes, of Americus—The Literary Exercises.

DAWSON, June 13.—Wednesday was a red letter day in the history of the college here, it being the last day of this year's brilliant commencement nel L. C. Hoyle, in fitting and eloquent words, introduced to the large audience assembled in the college chapel, the Hon. W. M. Hawkes, of Americus, who delivered the annual literary address, his theme being the following: "The Present, an Age of Books." For fifty minutes this eloquent speaker held the undivided attention of his hearers, who regretted that he did not continue longer. The address throughout abounded in beautiful thoughts, clothed in chaste and eloquent language, and its author sustained his reputation as a polished and gifted orator.

Wednesday night the senior class entertained the audience by a number of well written essays and a well delivered speech. While all did well Miss Corinne Yorbrough's valedictory deserves special mention.

Hon. R. F. Crittenden, of Randolph, in an admirable and happily delivered speech, presented to the successful students the medals and prizes, aggregating about thirty in number. Misses Corinne Yarbrough and Dosia E. Stewart, of Randolph county, secured the beautiful and costly "Keely medals" as excelling in senior Latin. Captain John Keely, of Atlanta, furnished these magnificent medals. Misses Fannie O'Neal, of Valdosta, and Eva Bray, of Leary, won the "Stevens medal," offered by Mr. J. F. Stevens, of Atlanta, to the best pupil in the junior Latin class. This was also a rare and costly medal. The medal in geometry was awarded to Mr. A. Baldwin, Jr., of Cuthbert. The medal for general excellence was shared by R. D. Ivey, of Cuthbert, and Miss Mattie Bell, of Dawson. Miss Alice Dozier, of our city, secured the medal for excellence in deportment. The medals in the music department were awarded to Misses Kathleen McNulty, Daisy James, and Vickie Wilkinson, of Dawson, and Jessie Thrasher, of Brooks county. The medal in penmanship was presented to Mr. Luther D. Wise, of Webster county. The medal in orthography was secured by Master Willie Orr, of Dawson, who had not missed a word during the entire term of ten months. The baccalaureate address by the president, Professor McNulty, was eminently practical, sensible and excellent, and was concluded in chaste, forcible and appropriate language. At its conclusion, he presented to the graduating class their well-earned and highly prized diplomas. The college in all its previous history, has never known a more brilliant or a more enjoyable commencement. Such is the universal testimony of all who have attended the commencement of 1884.

Cure of Asthma and Spinal Weakness.

239 WEST 22D STREET,
NEW YORK, May 17, 1883.

Though it may be irregular for a physician to give a certificate in favor of a proprietary medicine, still, in the cause of humanity, I venture to say a word in favor of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS, which I esteem the most remarkable external remedy of this century.

I have known these Plasters to cure Spinal Weakness where the patient had been confined for months to his bed. A blacksmith of my acquaintance was severely injured in the back by the kick of a horse; four ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS quickly relieved him of excruciating agony and cured him in a week. Another patient suffering with Neuralgia of the Heart, was completely cured in four hours.

In Asthma, I know of a case where they were worn for three months and fully restored the health. In another case where a patient had Sporadic Cholera, nothing relieved him until he put on three ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS; in twelve hours all pains in his chest and stomach disappeared. I know that these Plasters, applied on the pit of the stomach, are a sovereign remedy for Dyspepsia and Constipation.

Finally, if persons once use ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS they will never use any other; they are so pleasant, quick and painless—nature's balmy assistant.

RAILROAD NEWS.

THE HEADLIGHTS RUNNING INTO ATLANTA.

The Gainesville and Dahlonega—The Change in Presidents of the Louisville and Nashville Road—The Shipment of Melons—The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Road.

THE Marietta and North Georgia railroad will likely reach Ellijay about the 15th of this month.

RUMORS are again current of prospective changes in the management of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad. Commissioner Albert Fink has been offered the presidency, but it is not believed he will accept.

IT has now become a subject of betting in Wall street as to which company is next to go into the hands of a receiver. The majority of bets taken, with odds given, is that it is the Louisville and Nashville, or the Jersey Central. The last named road is certainly not likely to escape the fate of a receivership, if the report be correct that the coal combination is to burst wide open in a few days.

Local Railroad Points.

The Western and Atlantic excursion train to Marietta has been well patronized the last two Sundays.

The freights from the west at present consist almost entirely of grain and meat, and no large quantities of either.

While the freight traffic is about as dull as it ever gets, it is a noticeable fact that travel towards the east and west is very heavy.

It is generally believed that Macon will send an immense crowd of excursionists to see the walking match here on the 24th.

The Western and Atlantic railroad's shops have just turned out two magnificent locomotives—heavy, substantial and handsome.

The yardmasters did not wait for the excursion to Florida which had been arranged for them. The main body proceeded to St. Louis where they will scatter to their respective homes. A few went to Savannah and a number to Augusta.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad carried over 2,000 car loads of Georgia and Florida melons to the west last season. This season the line and its connections have 11,550 hoist cars and 650 ventilated fruit cars.

Mr. J. J. Griffin, general freight agent of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, received telegraphic advices yesterday, of a bad break on the Missouri Pacific, west of Sierra Blanca. The break was caused by the washing rains. It is expected that similar reports will come in from other roads in localities where the flood was unusually destructive.

The various roads interested in the traffic have their agents traveling among the melon growers setting forth the merits of their respective lines, and armed with an attractive array of chromos and statistical documents. It takes a railroad man with the ability of a first class diplomatist to capture the average melon grower and shipper.

With the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia passenger depot located at a distance of about half a mile from the so-called Union passenger depot, and with the projected Georgia Pacific passenger depot situated at a still greater distance, travelers passing through Atlanta will be subjected to not a little inconvenience. There is a general demand for a new union passenger depot, and when it is built it should be constructed on such a scale as to afford ample accommodations not only for existing roads, but for such as will in all probability be built in the course of the next twenty years. With so many important railroads centering here a large union depot eligibly situated is a positive necessity.

The Gainesville and Dahlonega.

GAINESVILLE, June 13.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Gainesville and Dahlonega railroad company was held yesterday at the office of H. H. Perry. President Price submitted his annual report, which was ordered spread upon the minutes. The election for officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, W. P. Price; directors, A. D. Candler, A. Rudolph, G. W. Walker, C. G. Sanders, S. C. Dunlap, Gainesville; F. W. Hall, N. F. Howard, W. J. Worley, P. M. Sitton, and J. P. Imboden, Dahlonega.

The Louisville and Nashville.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Within the past few weeks C. C. Baldwin, Jacob S. Rogers and Milton H. Smith have been the executive officers of the Louisville and Nashville road. Three different presidents within about as many different weeks, or an average of a new president a week, is doing pretty well, even for so large a corporate body as is the Louisville and Nashville railroad company. To be sure, Mr. Baldwin held the position for some time, Mr. Rogers for a couple of weeks, and Mr. Smith was elected to the presidency by yesterday.

That Messrs. Baldwin and Rogers are able and practical railroad men is not a certainty so much as is the fact that the former was acknowledged as a good financier.

His financial venture did not prove altogether satisfactory to the directory of the Louisville and Nashville road, and on request he handed in his resignation and paid into the treasury of the corporation a matter of $200,000, which, it is claimed, covers the amount of the company's money that he expended in endeavoring to sustain the price of the company's stock on a declining market without the consent of the directors.

It may be that the money turned over by Mr. Baldwin makes good all losses, but there are many who doubt the truth of this statement. Mr. Rogers resigned the presidency of the road after wielding the scepter and wearing the purple but a short time, and was succeeded yesterday by Mr. Milton H. Smith, who has been connected with the company for a series of years in various capacities, but latest as first vice-president and general manager.

That the selection of Mr. Smith as the chief executive is a good one cannot be doubted by any who know him, and are acquainted with his ability as a practical railroad man. Doubtless Mr. Smith is not possessed of as great financial ability as others who have been at the head of the corporation, but if not it will probably be so much the better for the company and the stockholders interested pecuniarily in its welfare. The trouble with a great many of the railroad corporations of the country to-day is a preponderance of ability of a financiering order in the direction and management of affairs while practical men are left out in the cold.

The directory of the Louisville and Nashville is to be reorganized, but the foreign holders of stock and securities want a finger in the pie, and consequently the reorganization which was to have taken place was postponed so as to give the foreign holders a chance. Whether Mr. Smith will be retained as president when the reorganization is perfected, is a question which will be settled in the future.

The career of the newly elected president with the road begun when he was local freight agent at Louisville. When Albert Fink, now commissioner of the Trunk Line pool, was president, Mr. Smith was general freight agent. He severed his connection with the Louisville and Nashville to accept a position with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, with which corporation he was assistant to President Garrett. Later on he succeeded Mr. Dougherty as general freight agent of the Baltimore and Ohio. The Pennsylvania people desired his services, and secured him and placed him at New York in charge of the eastern traffic of the road. Each of the changes made by Mr. Smith brought him an increased salary, and added to his already well-established reputation as an able railroad man. The Louisville and Nashville people missed the services of Mr. Smith, and so the office of third vice-president was created and tendered him. He accepted the position and returned to his first love, where he has since remained. On the resignation of General Alexander, as first vice-president of the company, Mr. Smith was elected to that office, and has held it for about four years, and has also been general manager the greater part of that time. He is about forty-five years of age, and is acknowledged by the railroad fraternity at large to be one of the ablest freightmen in the United States. The selection of Mr. Smith for the presidency of the Louisville and Nashville road is as good a one as could have been made. The stock of the Louisville and Nashville road has fluctuated in value considerably. A large amount of money has in times gone by been made out of it, notably by H. Victor Newcomb and his associates. Newcomb was at one time president of the corporation, and it was during his administration that many miles of road was purchased and added to the system. The stock, which was worth 45, went up like a rocket until it reached 180, at about which time a stock dividend of 100 per cent was declared. Even after this the stock sold at 106, which was equal to 212 per share to the holders, as, of course, the dividend was nothing more nor less than a gift of which the large holders got the lion's share—getting one share as a gift for each one they held. Thus it was that large fortunes were made by those who closed out. Yesterday Louisville and Nashville stock was quoted at 26 and 27. Oh, what a fall was there, my countrymen.

The Georgia.

From the Savannah Times.

A special telegram from Augusta to the Charleston News and Courier to-day says: "It is rumored here that the Louisville and Nashville is about to go into the hands of a receiver and that in that case the lease of the Georgia railroad will be broken, as the Central railroad cannot lease another road under the laws of Georgia. Everything depends, it is said, upon the Louisville and Nashville keeping out of the hands of a receiver. Under the lease Georgia railroad stock pays a dividend of ten per cent per annum."

A representative of the Times called upon President Raoul, of the Central, to make inquiries in regard to the portion of the dispatch relating to the lease of the Georgia railroad being affected. Captain Raoul stated that the Central railroad was not a lessee of the Georgia; that the lease was made to William M. Wadly and his assigns; to an individual and not a corporation. Further he had nothing to say.

From other investigations, however, we learn that there is apparently no necessity for the appointment of a receiver for the Louisville and Nashville railroad, and that its earnings are sufficient to tide them over all difficulties, provided harmony can be had among the directors.

Even if a receiver is appointed it does not necessarily follow that the lease will be broken, as it is really an asset, and the receiver may find it more advantageous to retain it than dispose of it. The statements reiterated that all payments due by the Louisville and Nashville up to the first of August are provided for, which, if true, ought to keep the company on its feet.

The Georgia Pacific.

From the Winona Times.

Mr. E. T. Harte, one of the representatives of the Georgia Pacific railroad company, was in Winona last week to have some papers recorded by our chancery clerk. He informed Mr. Drane that the company intended to extend the line from Columbus west at as early a date as possible. He stated that the greater part of the unfinished work between Atlanta and Columbus was under contract, and that they were moving westward to the Mississippi river terminus as rapidly as circumstances would allow, and that Winona would be their crossing point on the Illinois Central railroad, that the route originally surveyed would be followed in the westward extension.

Mr. Harte went from here to Carrollton to have similar records made in that county, and will go to the end of the line at Greenville. If his statements are based upon knowledge, and not surmise, we may encourage the hope of some definite results from his mission at an early day.

It is a fact too well known to be denied, that if it were not for Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup hotel proprietors in Florida would put their rates up to ten dollars per day.

BLACKWELL'S DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO

Violations of the Statute Cited.

The twelve men who are investigating the murder of Mrs. Jennie Rose locked themselves in, yesterday, when they heard the testimony of the witnesses, some thirty or forty of whom had been gathered into a room at police headquarters. The jury occupied the office of Chief Connolly while the witnesses were in an adjoining room. The investigation lasted from two until near seven, but concerning the developments but little is said outside. The coroner and jurymen are dumb as oysters. The jury of inquest has determined to spare no pains in the investigation, and every effort possible will be made to discover the perpetrator of the dastardly murder. That was fully determined on, and the work of detection has been started with redoubled energy. Solicitor General Hill was present at yesterday's investigation and conducted the examination of witnesses. At 7 o'clock the jury adjourned to meet again on Friday next, to give the officers time to work on the facts that came out at yesterday's inquest. Every theory is being examined by the best officers on the force, and everything that looks like a clue will be sifted to the bottom.

HOW THE THEORIES STAND.

The detail of officers who are working the theory that Rose murdered his wife do so with a firm belief that they are on the right track. They are aware that they have a difficult task, but they are working zealously. Officer Nolan was the first policeman to reach the house on the night of the murder, and with the others worked hard on an investigation of the various tracks. They found under the window tracks made by a man in his stocking feet. This track from the outside measurements was ten inches, so Officer Nolan says. It went from the fence to the window and from the window to the fence, and a few yards away a place was found where the man sat down and put on his shoes. Further down the street this track was joined by the track of a female, and the two persons walked up and down the street very considerably. Rose has not yet had his foot measured, but if it should fit the measure of the track in the yard it would be a very strong circumstance against him. Most people have given up the theory that Clara Suggs was connected with the murder, but the theory that Rose and Miss Frazier did it has gained additional advocates. The fact that Miss Frazier put on her shoes before she ran out to give the alarm is considered a very strange proceeding indeed, when a woman's impulse would naturally have been to run out without ceremony, screaming with fright.

The measure of her track was taken, and strange to say, was the same as that of the female who walked around on the street near the house. Few, however, believe that the two tracks were made by the same person. There are points as to this theory which, of course, it would not be proper to give, as an undue prejudice might be raised against innocent parties. There are those who believe that the murderer did not pass through the window at all, but that the appearances of burglar work were only for a blind.

THE BURGLARY THEORY.

The burglar theory found shape in the arrest of Sim Morton as was stated in yesterday's CONSTITUTION, but no [illegible] Morton is life. I was then making my own living and his too. This was about twelve weeks after our marriage. I was obliged not only to keep myself, but was obliged to keep him in his extravagant display, and consequently, at the end of that season at Madison Square theater all my earnings were spent. He refused to give me the proceeds of an engagement here in Pittsburg shortly after that, and during my illness in Atlanta, where I fainted while playing my part, his treatment was almost unbearable.

I was compelled to leave home just after this, although in poor health. On my friends interfering with his brutal conduct, he threatened to shoot me or anybody else who interfered, and said that he would leave me only over my dead body. I returned to New York with him, and he informed me that all communication with my family must cease, and afterwards he intercepted all letters and telegrams sent to me. When my baby was a few weeks old he told me "to get out and go home as soon as I liked."

While I was with the "White Slave" company he traveled with me and collected my salary, and out of $170 a week sometimes only handed me $2. My child was with my mother, and I gathered $20 to send to my nurse. He discovered that I sent it by express and demanded the receipt. When I refused he drew his revolver and watch, and gave me two minutes to produce the receipt or die. As I feared losing my position and was greatly in need of money I let the matter pass at the time."

It is also charged that Clayburg used his wife's money for all kinds of dissipation.

SHOOTING AT A MAYOR.

A Revenue Man Sends a Bullet Towards Dallas' Mayor's Head Yesterday.

Passengers who came in on the East Tennessee train last night tell of an attempt to assassinate G. P. Roberts, the mayor of Dallas, in Paulding county. It appears that G. W. Foote was arrested in Dallas several weeks ago and was fined by the mayor but failee to pay the fine, alleging that he was distressed pecuniarily. Not long ago Foote secured work in the internal revenue department, and yesterday when he was in Dallas, Mayor Roberts directed Marshal Chesney to collect the fine or arrest Foote. The marshal demanded the fine, and during his conversation with Foote Mayor Roberts passed near him. As soon as the mayor came under Foote's observation Foote jerked out his pistol and pointing it at the mayor fired. As the trigger was drawn Marshal Chesney knocked the pistol up and the ball went over Mayor Roberts's head. Foote was arrested.

HANGING IN SEALE.

The Murderer of Troy Adams Confesses His Crime.

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 13.—[Special.]—Lewellyn Robinson, colored, was hanged at Seale to-day for the murder of Troy Adams, near Fort Mitchell, in March. He stoutly protested his innocence until he mounted the gallows, when he broke down and confessed the crime. He says he was riding in the buggy with Troy Adams, when he shot him with a pistol. He was prompted by jealousy, the girl they were both courting, having told him that evening she was going to marry Troy.

The case of Dr. Drake, charged with the killing of John Scarbrough, was given the jury this evening and they are now out.

THE HISTORY OF
Brewer's Lung Restorer

Its Claims Upon the Public—Why it Should be Universally Used.

It is very often the case that treasures remain hidden for years right under one's eyes and only discovered at last by accident. Such was the case with Brewer's Lung Restorer. This remedy was used for nearly forty years by a little neighborhood of people who either did not appreciate its true value or did not have the means or opportunity to proclaim its virtues to the world. When they had a cough, sore throat, bronchitis, tickling in the throat or other throat and lung troubles they made them a small kettle full of this unnamed remedy, the material for which they had but to look for in the forests and old fields surrounding their homes and in a remarkably short time they were relieved by its use and the cough left it if any more until it was again required. However, things have changed since those days. Such treasures are easily sought after and do not long remain in obscurity. The present proprietors of this old remedy having by accident learned that its cures were miraculous determined at once to ascertain for themselves what merit it really possessed, and having tested it in a great number of cases, in all of which it proved efficacious, they purchased the right to manufacture and sell the same under the name of Brewer's Lung Restorer and it has become so widely known under their management that it is to-day recognized as the greatest throat and lung remedy of the age. Containing no opiates it can be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate. Being entirely vegetable its effects can in no way be harmful and even in the event that it fails to cure the general health of the patient is greatly improved. It can be given to six month's old infants in the prescribed doses with beneficial effects; yet full grown men are surprised at its magical effect on them

Those who suffer from wasting diseases, such as consumption and dyspepsia, rapidly gain in flesh and strength by the use of Brewer's Lung Restorer Many instances of patients gaining 7 pounds of flesh from every bottle they took have been reported to us. Testimonials from the best people in the land are found in every newspaper of consequence and such testimonials from such men must convince the public that this remedy posesses great merit. This medicine, indorsed by such men, has done more to break down the prejudice existing against patent medicines than any other remedy known. For the various reasons mentioned we call upon suffering humanity to give Brewer's Lung Restorer a trial. It is almost infallable. Its effects are wonderful—in fact miraculous.

WHERE THE FIRE IS OUT

"Haroun of Aleppo," said Sir Philip Derval, "had mastered every secret in nature which the nobler magic seeks to fathom. He discovered that the true art of healing is to assist Nature to throw of the disease—to summon, as it were, the whole system to eject the enemy that has fastened on a part. His processes all included the reinvigoration of the principle of life."

In this the eastern sage merely anticipated the practice of the best physicians of to-day. What life itself is, nobody knew then—nobody knows now. But we have learned something of the reasons why the mysterious tide rises and falls. Provided the great organs of the body are not irreparably destroyed, medical science can always relieve, and often save. Yet no reputable physician now adheres to the barbarous and stupid processes of depletion, such as bleeding, by which it was attempted to cure disease by reducing the patient's ability to resist it. Nowadays we do not tear down the fort to help the garrison—we strengthen it.

In this intelligent and beneficent work, it is conceded that PARKER'S TONIC leads all other medicies. As an invigorant it acts immediately and powerfully upon the circulation and the organs of digestion, thus giving Nature the assistance she calls for. It follows that all ailments of the stomach, kidneys and liver are at once relieved or cured. No other preparation embodies the same qualities or produces similar results. It is delicious to use, and the best known anti-intoxicant. Price 50c and $1. HISCOX & Co., New York.

RAILROAD NEWS.

THE HEADLIGHTS RUNNING INTO ATLANTA.

The Gainesville and Dahlonega—The Change in Presidents of the Louisville and Nashville Road—The Shipment of Melons—The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Road.

THE Marietta and North Georgia railroad will likely reach Ellijay about the 15th of this month.

RUMORS are again current of prospective changes in the management of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad. Commissioner Albert Fink has been offered the presidency, but it is not believed he will accept.

IT has now become a subject of betting in Wall street as to which company is next to go into the hands of a receiver. The majority of bets taken, with odds given, is that it is the Louisville and Nashville, or the Jersey Central. The last named road is certainly not likely to escape the fate of a receivership, if the report be correct that the coal combination is to burst wide open in a few days.

Local Railroad Points.

The Western and Atlantic excursion train to Marietta has been well patronized the last two Sundays.

The freights from the west at present consist almost entirely of grain and meat, and no large quantities of either.

While the freight traffic is about as dull as it ever gets, it is a noticeable fact that travel towards the east and west is very heavy.

It is generally believed that Macon will send an immense crowd of excursionists to see the walking match here on the 24th.

The Western and Atlantic railroad's shops have just turned out two magnificent locomotives—heavy, substantial and handsome.

The yardmasters did not wait for the excursion to Florida which had been arranged for them. The main body proceeded to St. Louis where they will scatter to their respective homes. A few went to Savannah and a number to Augusta.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad carried over 2,000 car loads of Georgia and Florida melons to the west last season. This season the line and its connections have 11,550 hoist cars and 650 ventilated fruit cars.

Mr. J. J. Griffin, general freight agent of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, received telegraphic advices yesterday, of a bad break on the Missouri Pacific, west of Sierra Blanco. The break was caused by the washing rains. It is expected that similar reports will come in from other roads in localities where the flood was unusually destructive.

The various roads interested in the traffic have their agents traveling among the melon growers setting forth the merits of their respective lines, and armed with an attractive array of chromos and statistical documents. It takes a railroad man with the ability of a first class diplomatist to capture the average melon grower and shipper.

With the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia passenger depot located at a distance of about half a mile from the so-called Union passenger depot, and with the projected Georgia Pacific passenger depot situated at a still greater distance, travelers passing through Atlanta will be subjected to not a little inconvenience. There is a general demand for a new union passenger depot, and when it is built it should be constructed on such a scale as to afford ample accommodations not only for existing roads, but for such as will in all probability be built in the course of the next twenty years. With so many important railroads centering here a large union depot eligibly situated is a positive necessity.

The Gainesville and Dahlonega.

GAINESVILLE, June 13.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Gainesville and Dahlonega railroad company was held yesterday at the office of H. H. Perry. President Price submitted his annual report, which was ordered spread upon the minutes. The election for officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, W. P. Price; directors, A. D. Candler, A. Rudolph, G. W. Walker, C. C. Sanders, S. C. Dunlap, Gainesville; F. W. Hall, N. E. Howard, W. J. Worley, P. M. Sitton, and J. F. Imboden, Dahlonega.

The Louisville and Nashville.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Within the past few weeks C. C. Baldwin, Jacob S. Rogers and Milton H. Smith have been the executive officers of the Louisville and Nashville road. Three different presidents within about as many different weeks, or an average of a new president a week, is doing pretty well, even for so large a corporate body as is the Louisville and Nashville railroad company. To be sure, Mr. Baldwin held the position for some time, Mr. Rogers for a couple of weeks, and Mr. Smith was elected to the presidency by yesterday.

That Messrs. Baldwin and Rogers are able and practical railroad men is not a certainty so much as is the fact that the former was acknowledged as a good financier.

His financial venture did not prove altogether satisfactory to the directory of the Louisville and Nashville road, and on request he handed in his resignation and paid into the treasury of the corporation a matter of $200,000, which, it is claimed, covers the amount of the company's money that he expended in endeavoring to sustain the price of the company's stock on a declining market without the consent of the directors.

It may be that the money turned over by Mr. Baldwin makes good all losses, but there are many who doubt the truth of this statement. Mr. Rogers resigned the presidency of the road after wielding the scepter and wearing the purple but a short time, and was succeeded yesterday by Mr. Milton H. Smith, who has been connected with the company for a series of years in various capacities, but latest as first vice-president and general manager.

That the selection of Mr. Smith as the chief executive is a good one cannot be doubted by any who know him, and are acquainted with his ability as a practical railroad man. Doubtless Mr. Smith is not possessed of as great financial ability as others who have been at the head of the corporation, but if not it will probably be so much the better for the company and the stockholders interested pecuniarily in its welfare. The trouble with a great many of the railroad corporations of the country to-day is a preponderance of ability of a financiering order in the direction and management of affairs while practical men are left out in the cold.

The directory of the Louisville and Nashville is to be reorganized, but the foreign holders of stock and securities want a finger in the pie, and consequently the reorganization which was to have taken place was postponed so as to give the foreign holders a chance. Whether Mr. Smith will be retained as president when the reorganization is perfected, is a question which will be settled in the future.

The career of the newly elected president with the road begun when he was local freight agent at Louisville. When Albert Fink, now commissioner of the Trunk Line pool, was president, Mr. Smith was general freight agent. He severed his connection with the Louisville and Nashville to accept a position with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, with which corporation he was assistant to President Garrett. Later on he succeeded Mr. Dougherty as general freight agent of the Baltimore and Ohio. The Pennsylvania people desired his services, and secured him and placed him at New York in charge of the eastern traffic of the road. Each of the changes made by Mr. Smith brought him an increased salary, and added to his already well-established reputation as an able railroad man. The Louisville and Nashville people missed the services of Mr. Smith, and so the office of third vice-president was created and tendered him. He accepted the position and returned to his first love, where he has since remained. On the resignation of General Alexander, as first vice-president of the company, Mr. Smith was elected to that office, and has held it for about four years, and has also been general manager the greater part of that time. He is about forty-five years of age, and is acknowledged by the railroad fraternity at large to be one of the ablest freightmen in the United States. The selection of Mr. Smith for the presidency of the Louisville and Nashville road is as good a one as could have been made. The stock of the Louisville and Nashville road has fluctuated in value considerably. A large amount of money has in times gone by been made out of it, notably by H. Victor Newcomb and his associates. Newcomb was at one time president of the corporation, and it was during his administration that many miles of road was purchased and added to the system. The stock, which was worth 45, went up like a rocket until it reached 180, at about which time a stock dividend of 100 per cent was declared. Even after this the stock sold at 106, which was equal to 212 per share to the holders, as, of course, the dividend was nothing more nor less than a gift of which the large holders got the lion's share—getting one share as a gift for each one they held. Thus it was that large fortunes were made by those who closed out. Yesterday Louisville and Nashville stock was quoted at 26 and 27. Oh, what a fall was there, my countrymen.

The Georgia.

From the Savannah Times.

A special telegram from Augusta to the Charleston News and Courier to-day says: "It is rumored here that the Louisville and Nashville is about to go into the hands of a receiver and that in that case the lease of the Georgia railroad will be broken, as the Central railroad cannot lease another road under the laws of Georgia. Everything depends, it is said, upon the Louisville and Nashville keeping out of the hands of a receiver. Under the lease Georgia railroad stock pays a dividend of ten per cent per annum."

A representative of the Times called upon President Raoul, of the Central, to make inquiries in regard to the portion of the dispatch relating to the lease of the Georgia railroad being affected. Captain Raoul stated that the Central railroad was not a lessee of the Georgia; that the lease was made to William M. Wadly and his assigns; to an individual and not a corporation. Further he had nothing to say.

From other investigations, however, we learn that there is apparently no necessity for the appointment of a receiver for the Louisville and Nashville railroad, and that its earnings are sufficient to tide them over all difficulties, provided harmony can be had among the directors.

Even if a receiver is appointed it does not necessarily follow that the lease will be broken, as it is really an asset, and the receiver may find it more advantageous to retain it than dispose of it. The statements reiterated that all payments due by the Louisville and Nashville up to the first of August are provided for, which, if true, ought to keep the company on its feet.

The Georgia Pacific.

From the Winona Times.

Mr. E. T. Harte, one of the representatives of the Georgia Pacific railroad company, was in Winona last week to have some papers recorded by our chancery clerk. He informed Mr. Drane that the company intended to extend the line from Columbus west at as early a date as possible. He stated that the greater part of the unfinished work between Atlanta and Columbus was under contract, and that they were moving westward to the Mississipi river terminus as rapidly as circumstances would allow, and that Winona would be their crossing point on the Illinois Central railroad, that the route originally surveyed would be followed in the westward extension.

Mr. Harte went from here to Carrollton to have similar records made in that county, and will go to the end of the line at Greenville. If his statements are based upon knowledge, and not surmise, we may encourage the hope of some definite results from his mission at an early day.

It is a fact too well known to be denied, that if it were not for Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup hotel proprietors in Florida would put their rates up to ten dollars per day.

THE HISTORY OF
Brewer's Lung Restorer

Its Claims Upon the Public—Why it Should be Universally Used.

It is very often the case that treasures remain hidden for years right under one's eyes and only discovered at last by accident. Such was the case with Brewer's Lung Restorer. This remedy was used for nearly forty years by a little neighborhood of people who either did not appreciate its true value or did not have the means or opportunity to proclaim its virtues to the world. When they had a cough, sore throat, bronchitis, tickling in the throat or other throat and lung troubles they made them a small kettle full of this unnamed remedy, the material for which they had but to look for in the forests and old fields surrounding their homes and in a remarkably short time they were relieved by its use and never thought of it any more until it was again required. However, things have changed since those days. Such treasures are easily sought after and do not long remain in obscurity. The present proprietors of this old remedy having by accident learned that its cures were miraculous determined at once to ascertain for themselves what merit it really possessed, and having tested it in a great number of cases, in all of which it proved efficacious, they secured the right to manufacture and sell the same under the name of Brewer's Lung Restorer and it has become so widely known under their management that it is to-day recognized as the greatest throat and lung remedy of the age. Containing no opiates it can be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate. Being entirely vegetable its effects can in no way be harmful and even in the event that it fails to cure the general health of the patient is greatly improved. It can be given to six month's old infants in the prescribed doses with beneficial effects; yet full grown men are surprised at its magical effect on them.

Those who suffer from wasting diseases, such as consumption and dyspepsia, rapidly gain in flesh and strength by the use of Brewer's Lung Restorer Many instances of patients gaining 7 pounds of flesh from every bottle they took have been reported to us. Testimonials from the best people in the land are found in every newspaper of consequence and such testimonials from such men must convince the public that this remedy posesses great merit. This medicine, indorsed by such men, has done more to break down the prejudice existing against patent medicines than any other remedy known. For the various reasons mentioned we call upon suffering humanity to give Brewer's Lung Restorer a trial. It is almost infallable. Its effects are wonderful—in fact miraculous.

"Haroun of Aleppo," said Sir Philip Derval, "had mastered every secret in nature which the nobler magic seeks to fathom. He discovered that the true art of healing is to assist Nature to throw of the disease—to summon, as it were, the whole system to eject the enemy that has fastened on a part. His processes all included the reinvigoration of the principle of life."

In this the eastern sage merely anticipated the practice of the best physicians of to-day. What life itself is, nobody knew then—nobody knows now. But we have learned something of the reasons why the mysterious tide rises and falls. Provided the great organs of the body are not irreparably destroyed, medical science can always relieve, and often save. Yet no reputable physician now adheres to the barbarous and stupid processes of depletion, such as bleeding, by which it was attempted to cure disease by reducing the patient's ability to resist it. Nowadays we do not tear down the fort to help the garrison—we strengthen it.

In this intelligent and beneficent work, it is conceded that PARKER'S TONIC leads all other medicies. As an invigorant it acts immediately and powerfully upon the circulation and the organs of digestion, thus giving Nature the assistance she calls for. It follows that all ailments of the stomach, kidneys and liver are at once relieved or cured. No other preparation embodies the same qualities or produces similar results. It is delicious to use, and the best known anti-intoxicant. Price 50c and $1. HISCOX & Co., New York.

THE CONSTITUTION,
Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, JUNE 14, 1884.

INDICATIONS for the South Atlantic states at 1 a. m. to-day: partly cloudy weather, local rains, winds generally from northeast to northwest, nearly stationary temperature.

MR. TILDEN'S answer is final.

COUNT VON BORCKE is revisiting Virginia battle fields and is in the hands of old comrades.

IT is generally believed that Mr. Blaine will accept. However, he may become disheartened and pull out.

THE terrible condition of the Washington bank, managed by the Middletons, shows that business methods, as well as political matters in that city, need a complete overhauling.

THE college commencement has arrived in force, and for the next month the people of the state will be treated to their annual supply of music, speeches and commencement sermons and addresses.

THE impostor Tichborne, whose claim to large estates in England brought him into such notice, and finally into the penitentiary, is soon to become the great ticket of leave man. He will be released during good behavior next week.

THE house committee on public lands has agreed to report a bill to restore to the public domain all lands held in the indemnity limits for railroad and wagon road companies. This would restore one hundred million acres to the public domain.

THE rains of the present season in California have been greater than at any time within the past thirty-four years. For the first ten days of June the rainfall has been more than twice the amount of rainfall than for any entire month since 1850. Crops thoughout the state have been beaten to the ground by the sweeping floods.

THE partisan senate virtually killed Georgia's Trezevant claim bill yesterday. A republican committee reported favorably on it, but under the lash of their leader the very men who voted for the bill in committee, ktlled it by their votes on the floor of the senate. As a political machine between now and the time of adjournment the senate will be the most prominent in the country.

IT is a noticeable fact that the dissatisfied element of the republican party and the large independent vote of the east is turning to Cleveland as its choice for president. He seems to be the man on whom all factions are willing to unite to rout their former partisan on whom they cannot agree. It is probable that in the face of the present condition of affairs the convention which nominated Mr. Blaine would do otherwise had it to do over again.

THE meeting of independent republicans which assembled in Boston last night may result in some discomfiture to Mr. Blaine. It embraced many leading republicans, but rather than support Mr. Blaine, they declare themselves willing to vote the democratic ticket provided an acceptable leader is offered. It is probable that the head of the republican ticket now remembers, with supreme disgust, some very uncomplimentary terms which he once used in reference to the bay state. It may cost him much.

THROUGH the carelessness of the reporter who wrote the report of the democratic mass meeting Thursday night, published in our last issue, several errors occurred. Judge Anderson did not offer the resolutions fixing the time for the primaries, and the time fixed for holding the primaries, was the 30th of July instead of the 2d. In the list of delegates to gubernatorial convention the name of George Frey is reported, when it should have been George Terry.

THE ANTI-BLAINE CAMPAIGN.

There can be no doubt that if the Blaine boomers could have had foreknowledge of the nature and extent of the republican revolt against the ticket put in nomination by the Chicago convention their enthusiasm would have fallen short. In other words, if the republicans who had matters in charge at Chicago could revise their action, it is very certain that the ticket would not be headed by Mr. Blaine. For it cannot be denied that the opposition to the Maine statesman that has developed in the republican party becomes more and more formidable every day.

Describing it the other day as it then appeared, THE CONSTITUTION limited its campaign manifestations to the essayists and magazinists that have hitherto made it a point to turn up their noses at the mildest forms of practical politics. But the situation has materially changed since Blaine was nominated; it has changed, indeed, during the past week, and the change is in a direction that must give Mr. Blaine's friends cause for the liveliest apprehension. The movement away from the Blaine ticket on the part of republicans, appears to be in the nature of a stampede. It is as if a large section of the republican party had been waiting for some one to set it the example of bolting, and now that the example has been set by Mr. George William Curtis and other respectable republican leaders, the bolt has assumed proportions that are no doubt astonishing to those who were instrumental in bringing it about.

It is not by any means confined to the theorists and essayists of the east, nor to the journals that have hitherto been known as independent. It is a movement that has made considerable headway among the voters, and it is supported by newspapers that have heretofore been known as the bitterest republican organs. The German republican papers in the west do not hesitate do not look favorably on the republican ticket. Mr. Carl Schurz is now in the west, and there can be no doubt as to his purpose to nurse and feed the dissatisfaction of the German voters. The leading German newspaper of the northwest, the Illinos Staats-Zeitung, says that in the states where the German vote is decisive, enough [illegible] will vote the democratic ticket to [illegible] scale.

The bolt against Mr. Blaine [illegible] which there is a considerable [illegible] mystery. Those who may be [illegible] leaders of the movement say th[illegible] stomach Mr. Blaine's record, but [illegible] plain to all who have observed th[illegible] events in the republican party tha[illegible] Mr. Blaine's record that [illegible] the way. Otherwise, h[illegible] it that General Garfiel[illegible] record was as bad, or worse, sh[illegible] been so cordially accepted by the [illegible] who now flout Blaine? Mr. Bla[illegible] is no worse than the record of any[illegible] ical republican. It is a represent[illegible] lican record, and there is not to b[illegible] top of ground a more thoroughly [illegible] tive republican than Blaine. T[illegible] to his record is simply put forwa[illegible] ause by the thousands of honest[illegible] have hitherto acted with the repu[illegible] who are desirous of making a cha[illegible]

The nomination of Mr. Blaine [illegible] republicans their opportunity a[illegible] the democratic party its opportu[illegible] bolt has assumed such formidabl[illegible] ing proportions that it seems th[illegible] will have little difficulty i[illegible] the white plume of its [illegible] feathers. And yet th[illegible] tunity may halt at "it seems," i[illegible] crats do not manage matters cau[illegible] wisely. The situation is a very d[illegible] Pledged almost solidly to Mr. [illegible] representatives of the democracy [illegible] their leader's name by placing in [illegible] a ticket that shall give assurance [illegible] tire country of a wholesome and [illegible] ministration of public affairs, a[illegible] regard for individual and offici[illegible] and a wise and courageous desire [illegible] machinery of reform in motion.

The best sentiment of the party [illegible] country seems to lean at pres[illegible] Governor Grover Cleveland, of [illegible] but, with the growth and develop[illegible] revolt against Blaine, the who[illegible] may change. The democratic rep[illegible] can command success by meeting[illegible] tations of the country, and thi[illegible] have no difficulty in doing. Th[illegible] now are that the Blaine campaig[illegible] lapse before November.

RETURNING FINANCIAL ST[illegible]

The banks of New York City h[illegible] ed the danger line, and now hold[illegible] reserve above the twenty-five p[illegible] quired by law. The clearing ho[illegible] cates have been reduced one-ha[illegible] this has been accomplished wi[illegible] stress to legitimate business. As [illegible] in New York accumulate money [illegible] the banks in the country do als[illegible] gins to flow to this country, and as soon as the banks cease to contract their loans, the pressure of the past month will be measurably lifted. The immense contraction of loans has not wrought disaster in legitimate business channels, and this fact of itself is sufficient to show that business is in a sound condition. For the rest we must await the outturn of the crops. They are generally promising, and the weather may now fairly be held responsible for the condition of trade next fall and for the happiness and prosperity of the people.

IN bleeding for his beloved country during the war, Brother Blaine utilized his beautiful white plume.

THE Louisville and Nashville combination, which has been up to its ears in Wall street, is making a manful effort to extricate itself. Our sympathies are with the Louisville and Nashville in this effort. A railroad that has Wall street connections is an affair to fight shy of.

A NEWSPAPER correspondent went to church, in London, the other day, and devoted his time to staring at Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone. It seems that Mrs. Gladstone is a good looking lady, but her dress is so dowdy as to make her resemble a woman of the shop-keeping class. The premier shuffled into his pew with a quick, nervous, irregular step. He looked two inches shorter than he did four years ago. His face is withered, pinched and over-run with crow's feet. During the service he was uneasy and restless, and wore the air of a man who had a great trouble upon his mind. People who know Gladstone believe that the needless bloodshed in Egypt causes him the utmost agony. He certainly appears to be at least a century old, and no one can see him without a feeling of pain.

THEYoung men about town report a very ugly and dangerous feature in the most glittering circles of New York society. They report a disposition toward fastness among the fairer half that did not exist a few years ago. It is not noticeable, they say, among the wives and mothers as is the case in London, but is confined to the unmarried ones. The extravagant follies of many young women lower their moral tone and make them reckless in other things besides the expenditure of money. On a fine day at Tiffany's and other market places of Mammon, you will see young girls choosing jeweled garter buckles ranging in price from $200 upward; paying $350 for one jeweled smelling bottle; $150 for a gold headed silk umbrella; $100 for corset clasps of gold; $50 for a set of hair pins; $30 for a pearl and gold glove buttoner; $500 for an opera glass, and so on. When young girls are furnished with unlimited amounts of money, and encouraged to lead spectacular lives, it is not surprising that they lose their heads and become entangled in all the vanities of dissipation.

MR. CONKLING says that Judge Noah Davis is a partisan and a demagogue. When it is remembered that Davis is a man who practices republicanism on the bench, the public will agree with us that the language of Mr. Conkling is very mild.

THE probability is that Mr. Tilden retired to make room for the Hon. Hennery Watterson on the ticket.

MR. COLQUITT presented, on Tuesday, a memorial of citizens of Milledgeville, against the establishment of a government telegraph. In the house Mr. Hammond obtained unanimous [illegible] from the speaker's table the bill to change the time of holding the fall term of the United States district court in Atlanta, and the senate amendments were concurred in, and the bill goes to the president. Messrs. Blount and Buchanan vigorously opposed the bill to procure from the Red Lake Chippewa Indians the title to their entire reservation, about [illegible] The bill was disposed of.

General Babcock, who remained in government service, was drowned last week, as heretofore published. The same night his body arrived at Jacksonville, Mr. Colony died, and the two bodies were taken to the same undertaker. They were embalmed together and sent north on the same train as far as Washington, where General Babcock's body will be left, while Colony's will go to his friends in New Hampshire. It is somewhat remarkable that these two men should thus unconsciously meet in death so far from the scene of former strife, and travel to there graves together.

From the Wall Street News.

One day a few weeks ago one of the richest men in Chicago was asked for a private interview by a stranger, who explained:

"You are very rich. You have had wonderful luck. Tell me what to speculate in that I may make money.

"Never speculate at all," was the serious answer.

"But you have made money in railroad stocks, wheat, silver mines, canal stocks, etc."

"Not a dollar, young man! In fact, that's the way I have lost thousands."

"Why, then, how have you made your wealth?"

"By inventing a spring bed and patenting a bootjack. Let all speculation alone, and turn your attention to the solid wants of the people."

Two Governors:—1876—1884.

From the New York World.

In 1876 the democratic party chose for its candidates for president and vice-president the two democratic governors of the two battle-ground states of the union—New York and Indiana.

Indiana then, as an October state, occupied as important a position as Ohio, the only northern October state now left, occupies at the present time. In 1876 we had no democratic governor in Ohio. Hayes was governor of Ohio when he ran for the presidency.

Tilden, who had carried New York by a handsome majority, was nominated for president, and Hendricks, who had redeemed Indiana, was made his associate on the ticket as vice-president.

It is natural that men's minds should turn in 1884, as they turned in 1876, to the democrats who to-day occupy the most naturally prominent positions as their candidates when they are in doubt as to Mr. Tilden's willingness to accept the nomination. Those democrats, with their laurels of victory still green, are the governors of Ohio and New York; Hoadly, who was elected by a large majority on the largest vote but one ever cast in his state and by a clear majority over all other candidates; Cleveland, who won an unprecedented victory in this state.

Hoadly and Cleveland are to-day democratic governors over two of the greatest states in the union, and they have one advantage on their side, the independents are already accustomed to vote for them! In Ohio and in New York the independents contributed to their success. They trusted the two democratic governors and they have not been disappointed.

Hoadly and Cleveland or Cleveland and Hoadly would mean victory.

Couldn't Find a Pocket.

From the Morristown Herald.

A fire broke out in a dwelling house the other night, and after the man and his wife had safely reached the street the latter said that there was $600 in the pocket of her dress, hanging in a second story back room.

"I'll go for it," said the husband, and he plunged into the burning building.

The flames raged furiously, and the man did not return. At the expiration of an hour the fire was extinguished and the back building caved. Firemen groped their way up the rear stairs through water and blinding smoke, and found the man in the closet still fumbling at his wife's dress, looking for the money.

He was nearly suffocated with smoke, but had strength enough to say that he thought he would have found the pocket inside of two hours. It never occurred to him to seize the dress and rush out with that. Some men get so excited and nervous in time of fire.

Death of Arthur H. Jameson.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 13.—[Special.]—Arthur H. Jameson, superintendent of the Chattanooga street railway company, died at the residence of Mr. C. A. Ruoff on Montgomery avenue this a. m. Jameson was about 30 years of age, unmarried, and leaves a sister. He is known all over the city as an industrious and excellent business man. He had been confined to his room for about two weeks with some sort of fever, but notwithstanding this fact, the announcement of his death will prove a surprise to many friends, who will greatly mourn the demise of a thoroughly good man.

SOLOMON.

I am the King who mystic power commanded;
I built the temple, ruined towns supreme;
Hiram, my architect, and Charos, my right-hand,
Still here beside me dream.

One as a trowel, one as sword, was given;
I let them plan, and what they did was well;
My breath mounts higher, nearer unto heaven
Than Liberian whirlwinds swell.

God sometimes feels it. Child of guilty kisses,
Vast, gloomy is my wisdom; demons shun
To take, between high heaven and their abysses
A judge but Solomon.

I make men tremble and believe my story;
Conquering, they hail and follow to my feast;
As King, I bear down mortals with the glory,
And with the gloom, as priest.

Mine was of festals and of cups the vision,
The finger writing mene tekel then.
And war and chariots, clarions and collision
Of horses and of men.

Grand as some sullen idol's form discloses,
Mysterious as a garden's closed retreat,
Yet, though I be more mighty than the roses
In moons of May are sweet.

Take from me scepter with the bright gold ladies,
That as in fountains beams to mirror thee,
My throne, the archer on my tower above,
But men shall never take. O sweet young maiden,
From out my heart its love!

Men shall not take the love, O virgin purest,
More than from out the darkness of the forest
The song-bird's minstrelsy!

MACON, Ga., June 13.—[Special.]—The commencement exercises of Wesleyan female institute began this evening and were held in the chapel. NEW FEATURES AT WESLEYAN.

Dr. Bass said to-day: "I am happy to tell THE CONSTITUTION that the art rooms and gymnasium hall of Wesleyan are about completed and will soon be ready for the young ladies. The tower rooms are well located, and from the windows a most beautiful landscape can be viewed, and will serve as original copies. The calesthenics hall is a favorite of mine, and is both large and well ventilated. I am heartily in favor of physical development in young ladies, and this will prove a new feature in the future."

It was suggested to the doctor that the young ladies have a walking match.

"Oh," says he, "we have enough walking matches of our own without an exhibition. You see our young ladies walk a great deal on the long colonades, eight times around which is a mile, and I tell you we have some fine pedestrians, and find that the exercise is most beneficial to their health."

Dr. Bass has done much for the promotion of the institute. He has labored assiduously and to great advantage. When it was announced that it would require $40,000 to complete it he took the matter in charge, and under his management it was finished at a cost of only $12,000.

He Had Them Bad

AND IMAGINED ALL KINDS OF THINGS.

MACON, June 13.—[Special.]—This morning about 7 o'clock as officer Wray was walking his beat on Fourth street he was suddenly startled by a loud noise over head which was followed by a cry of murder and a man jumping from the shed above the distance of nearly fifteen feet. He ran to him and found him laboring under a peculiar idea of a man chasing him with a flying cannon. He was not hurt by his jump and was taken to his room in the Wilburn house. His name was A. N. Sharrock, and was from Texas. He is here in the interest of a patent fence, with his brother, G. W. Sharrock. During the morning he went out on the streets, and attracted much attention by his queer ideas and manner. He was arrested and taken to police headquarters. Chief Wiley remanded him to the ordinary, who was absent from the city. He was taken before Judge Simmons, who ruled that he had no jurisdiction in the matter. He was placed in the care of his brother. Later in the day he was arrested, and is in the barracks.

Davis and B. H. Barfield being the young men appointed to that dignified position.

WYNTON.

Amid Thunder and Lightning.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 13.—The last concerts of the June musical festival were held amid storms of thunder, lightning and rain. The lightning struck the Coliseum yesterday afternoon, causing a panic in the audience attending the children's concert, but prompt action on the part of brave people of men and women, especially Theodore Thomas, who, finding the building was not on fire, signaled the orchestra to proceed, prevented any one from being seriously injured, though in the house several ladies were carreid fainting from the room.

I let them plan, and what they did was well;
My breath mounts higher, nearer unto heaven
Than Liberian whirlwinds swell.

God sometimes feels it. Child of guilty kisses,
Vast, gloomy is my wisdom; demons shun
To take, between high heaven and their abysses
A judge but Solomon.

I make men tremble and believe my story;
Conquering, they hail and follow to my feast;
As King, I bear down mortals with the glory,
And with the gloom, as priest.

Mine was of festals and of cups the vision,
The finger writing mene tekel then,
And war and chariots, clarions and collision
Of horses and of men.

Grab I as some sullen idol's form discloses,
Mysterious as a garden's closed retreat,
Yet, though I be more mighty than the roses
In moons of May are sweet.

Take from me scepter with the bright gold laden
My throne, the archer on my tower above,
But men shall never take, O sweet young maiden,
From out my heart its love!

Men shall not take the love, O virgin purest,
That as in fountains beams to mirror thee,
More than from out the darkness of the forest
The song-bird's minstrey!

NEW FEATURES AT WESLEYAN.

Dr. Bass said to-day: "I am happy to tell THE CONSTITUTION that the art rooms and gymnasium hall of Wesleyan are about completed and will soon be ready for the young ladies. The tower rooms are well located, and from the windows a most beautiful landscape can be viewed, and will serve as original copies. The calesthenics hall is a favorite of mine, and is both large and well ven- tilated. I am heartily in favor of physical devel- opment in young ladies, and this will prove a new feature in the future."

It was suggested to the doctor that the young ladies have a walking match.

"Oh," says he, "we have enough walking match- es of our own without an exhibition. You see our young ladies walk a great deal on the long colon- ades, eight times around which is a mile, and I tell you we have some fine pedestrians, and find that the exercise is most beneficial to their health."

Dr. Bass has done much for the promotion of the institute. He has labored assiduously and to great advantage. When it was announced that it would require $40,000 to complete it he took the matter in charge, and under his management it was finished at a cost of only $12,600.

He Had Them Bad

AND IMAGINED ALL KINDS OF THINGS.

MACON, June 13.—[Special.]—This morning about 7 o'clock as officer Wray was walking his beat on Fourth street he was suddenly startled by a loud noise over head which was followed by a cry of murder and a man jumping from the shed above the distance of nearly fifteen feet. He ran to him and found him laboring under a peculiar idea of a man chasing him with a flying cannon. He was not hurt by his jump and was taken to his room in the Willburn house. His name was A. N. Sharrock, and was from Texas. He is here in the interest of a patent fence, with his brother, G. W. Sharrock. During the morning he went out on the streets, and attracted much atten- tion by his queer ideas and manner. He was ar- rested and taken to police headquarters. Chief Wiley remanded him to the ordinary, who was absent from the city. He was taken before Judge Simmons, who ruled that he had no jurisdiction in the matter. He was placed in the care of his brother. Later in the day he was arrested, and is in the barracks.

Mercer vs. Oxford,

TRESET-TO WHICH IS TO OCCUR ON THURSDAY AT GRIFFIN.

MACON, June 13.—[Special.]—Thursday next the great debate between these two well-known col leges will take place at Griffin and is looked for- ward to with much interest by Macon and the friends of Mercer. The Macon giants will be Messrs. J. G. Blount, James D. Chapman and Hen- ry S. Jones. The party will be escorted by two men each, Messrs. T. E. Ryals, E. W. Swift, E. V. Baldy, J. S. Schofield, W. H. Davis and B. H. Bar- field being the young men appointed to that dig- nified position.

WYNTON.

Amid Thunder and Lightning.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 13.—The last concerts of the June musical festival were held amid storms of thunder, lightning and rain. The lightning struck the Coliseum yesterday afternoon, causing a panic in the audience attending the children's matinee, but prompt action on the part of brave men and women, especially Theodore Thomas, who, finding the building was not on fire' the orchestra to proceed, prevented any one being seriously injured, though in the house several ladies were carried fainting from the room.

THE STAR ROUTE SWINDLERS.

Mr. Merrick Gives the Story of the Prosecu- tion---A Letter From Spencer.

WASHINGTON June 13.—Richard T. Merrick, of the government counsel in the star route prosecutions, was examined to-day by the committee investigating the trial of those cases. Messrs. Kerr and Bliss were present through- out his testimony to-day. Mr. Merrick con- fined himself to the facts and declined to ex- press opinions. He said, "When I came into this case, I found that the atmosphere was filled with suspicion. We had at the department a list of individuals in congress who were supposed to have had more or less connection with these transac- tions. I found such was the condition of the public mind that whenever a name mentioned in connection with these matters, the mere mention was at once construed to express suspicion, and a mere suspicion soon grew into a serious accusation. Therefore I directed that no man's name should be mentioned in con- nection with these matters, unless we had evidence to indict, because I was determined that the office and agencies of the department of justice should not be made the instruments of originating or circulating calumnies. The public mind is still sensitive on this subject, and the mere mention of a name, though the man be as innocent as the unfallen snow, might do harm and wrong some where.

THE SELECTION OF THE DORSEY CASE.

Mr. Merrick then reviewed his connection with the first trial. He said that Mr. Kerr prepared the indictments, that Bliss presented the evidence to the grand jury, and that he himself was on hand to be consulted whenever it might be necessary. His duty was to repre- sent the attorney general.

"Why was the Dorsey case selected?" was asked.

"The evidence in that case, in my judgment, was such that any reasonable man would re- quire to convict. It would have been the most extraordinary case to which I would have given preference. I have seldom had a case to try in court, the evidence of which was more satisfactory."

"What was the value of Walsh's testimony?"

"His testimony assumed a degree of impor- tance beyond that to which it was entitled as a mere matter of law."

"Up to the time of the introduction of Walsh on the stand, the judge seemed to regard the case as quite insufficient, and it was partly dead. His testimony met the public inquiry, "What has Brady had to do with the case?" It showed his uniform practice of charging for expediting."

"How did you overlook Walsh's testimony up to this time?"

"I don't know, as I was fully informed about what Walsh could tell. I think Woodward first told me. After I learn- ed the purport of the evidence I had a consul- tation with Bliss as to its admissibility. We concluded it was proper, and I said Walsh must be produced.

WHEN WALSH GREW ANGRY.

After some time I met Walsh and told him I wanted him to testify in the Dorsey-Brady case. He said he would not testify in that case at all. He complained that he had been badly treated; that he had testified before the grand jury in reference to Kellogg, and that Bliss had cast a reflection upon him. He gave me an account of his testimony before the grand jury, and designated Bliss, whether justly or unjustly I do not know, as influenc- ing the grand jury to disre- gard his evidence. His testimony in reference to Kellogg was the first I heard. I then may have spoken hastily of Bliss. I was excited and felt that if what Walsh said was true a great criminal had been allowed to escape. I told Walsh he should be fairly treated and vindicated. He agreed then to testify in the Dorsey-Brady case."

"Why was there a failure on the part of the jury to convict in the first trial?"

"The verdict was rendered finding Minor and Reerdell guilty and disagreeing as to other defendants. Those parties were tried for con- spiracy to defraud the government of the United States. The court instructed the jury to consider the proof bearing on the subject of conspiracy and first determine whether or not there was a conspiracy, and second find who were in it. The finding against Reer- dell and Minor was a neces- sity predicated upon the finding o the existence of a conspiracy. The evidence showed that they had no direct relation with each other, but they were subordinate to Dorsey and others. The jury found the subordinates guilty as having conspired, but could not agree as to the principals, and yet that jury was re- markably intelligent."

"And they had more brains than the aver- age?" interposed Mr. Vanalstyer.

"Gentlemen, draw your own inferences," Mr. Merrick continued. "I thought the verdict a disgrace, and was determined to get rid of it and succeeded. I was greatly surprised at it, and if you had heard my vernacular just then, you would have thought I was surprised."

REERDEL AS A WITNESS.

"How did it happen that you used Reerdel as a witness in the second trials?"

"I examined Reerdell's affidavits with care and found that they contained a great deal of important information. The determination to let him become a witness was not reached till the evening before he come on the stand. We had the worst jury I ever saw summoned. I never saw such a bad jury, bad in every re- spect. There were some men on that jury who could not read or write. They compelled us to take men who had not formed an opin- ion on the case. Nearly every intelligent man had formed an opinion. I had the evidence of the previous trial, but thought with such a jury I needed such testimony as Reerdell could give."

The witness referred to the letters alleged to have been sent by Dorsey to Bosler, relative to the interest of the defendants in the star-route and percentage of profits accruing therefor. On letter was said to have been written by Reer- dell and signed by Dorsey. The letter press copy came into the possession of the govern- ment's counsel. Bosler was subpœnaed to ap- pear as a witness to testify that he had re- ceived the original letter. He was detained in Washington, and while waiting to be called to the stand Mr. Merrick said he was approach- ed by an individual who asked that Reerdell be relieved from the subpœna. Mr. Merrick replied that all he desired was the letter, and that he could be obtained. He was willing to excuse witness.

LETTING OFF A WITNESS.

An effort was made by several members of the committee to get Merrick to tell who the individual was that asked for Bosler's dis- charge as a witness. He refused, however, to do so. When the committee adjourned Mr. Merrick was testifying rela- tive to the efforts to indict Kellogg before his case should be barred by the tatute of limitations. He said Bliss asked the court to recall the grand jury that the case might be presented. That jury was reconven- ed, Bliss appeared before it with Walsh, and the jury refused to indict Kellogg. Merrick will continue his testimony to-morrow.

Chairman Springer received the following letter from ex-Senator Spencer dated Wash- ington, June 12th."

"I see by the papers that S. W. Dorsey has written you a letter in which, among others, he says I demanded that he should pay $12,- 000 and for it I would see that he was granted immunity in the late "star route" trials. I pronounce this statement of Dorsey as abso- lutely false in every particular. I never made such a demand of him, and never had such a conversation with him, or any other person on the subject. My testimony can be had at any time you desire."

A Military Fete.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 13.—[Special.]—The Montgomery True Blues, commanded by Captain A. B. Garland, gave a prize drill to-night, which was witnessed by a large audience, a great many ladies being present. The prize plume was won by Mr. John Barker. The drilling was very credit- able, the company having improved very much. Extensive preparations are now being made to make the second regiment encampment a success. A large crowd is expected from all parts of the state.

head, and an extremely brutal cast of counte- nance. He is a man of many words, talking like an exhorter, and impressing everyone who sees him as being a bad character. He is, however, the head man of the "Deborah" benevolent society, and seems sorely distressed that a man of his many good deeds should be so ruthlessly snatched up on a charge of murder. He will endeavor to prove an alibi, claiming that on the fateful night he was at the house of "Sister" Hannah Roberts," where he had dropped in on society business and accidentally went to sleep in a chair. Sister Roberts then tendered him a bed which he thankfully accepted and rested there until daybreak. He is not married but lives with his parents only a few doors from the house of Rose. He is a whitewasher, but it is said that he does very little work. He made $1.75 last week he says.

A TALK WITH THIS PRISONER.

A CONSTITUTION man talked to Morton for quite a while yesterday, and found the prison- er deeply grieved that he should be thought guilty.

"To think," said he, "that anybody should accuse me of killing that poor white lady. Why, I am as innocent as a new-born babe," and Morton raised his eyes to the ceiling in righteous wonder. He talked incessantly, the burden of what he said being that he was far above a crime so base and terrible. He said that he never was charged with a crime be- fore.

There is some strong circumstantial evidence against Morton, and the officers who are work- ing the case against him are positive that he is the guilty party, but they are not sanguine of a conviction unless additional evidence is secured.

THE WOMEN RELEASED.

The two women, Nancy Frazier and Clara Suggs, were released from custody about 5 o'clock yesterday, and went home from the police station together. They were mad as fury and refused to be interviewed.

THE FUNERAL OF MRS. ROSE.

The body of the murdered woman was taken to Flowery Branch yesterday morning by the Air-Line train. She was buried four miles from there. Mr. Rose went, Officer Nolan hav- ing him in custody. He was very solemn but shed no tears on the trip. He returned last night at midnight and was taken to the police station. He is confident of a final acquittal.

DO NOT BELIEVE HIM GUILTY.

It is said that the Air Line attaches do not believe he is guilty. The statement of the night watchman, Mr. Wadsworth, that Rose played cards with him at the depot from eleven until he was called for by the engineer, and notified of his wife's death they regard as con- clusive when taken in connection with the previous good character of the man. He was at Faith's bar, so two officers will swear, at a quarter or half past eleven. Rose says he was there between ten and eleven.

STRANGE HE DID NOT HEAR IT.

Mr. Cleveland, who lives two or three doors below the Rose house, says he was awakened when his clock struck twelve. The clock was half an hour too fast so that the real city time was half past eleven. He did not go to sleep any more until the arlarm of the murder was given, which was at ten minutes to one by his time or twenty past twelve real time. He says he did not hear the pistol shot.

DEEPER MYSTERY THAN THE DEFOOR.

The police are agreed that there is more mys- tery about this murder than there was about the DeFoor killing; that there is less hold for an officer to get—more mystery and less clue.

The officers are all working with a will and may, however, strike the right trail and fol- low it to success.

THE DRESS COMES BACK.

The missing dress turned up mysteriously night before last in one of the trunks that had been time and again searched for it without success. The only missing article now is the pistol with which the murder was committed.

She was twenty-nine years of age. The men clung to the boat half an hour and were rescued.

Selma and the Coal Fields.

From the Selma Times.

Colonel C. C. NeSmith, president of the Chi- cago and Pensacola Grand Trunk railway com- pany, is in the city, and stated to the Times last night that his visit is for the purpose of putting in a building plant, to follow up the survey, which Major M. G. Kennedy, chief engineer, has completed to the Ocmulgee val- ley, a distance of twelve miles. The road will be begun very soon, arrangements being per- fected for its starting. He says he is not on a begging expedition at all, though he would be glad to see Selma sufficiently interested in the enterprise to take its first mortgage bonds. He plans, if Selma desires and will co-ope- rate, to have a public demonstration at the breaking of dirt by a baptism with waters from Lake Michigan, the Ohio, the Tennessee, the Warrior, the Tombigbee and Alabama rivers and the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic ocean, all of which are touched or crossed by the main stem or arms. If it is desired, emi- nent speakers will be secured for the purpose of delivering addresses on the system, its benefit and the prominence it is to hold in the future development of the west and south. We hail with pleasure the confident statement of Colonel NeSmith that this road is to be be- gun and finished, and with the enterprise all success.

"OLD SI."

is Epigrammatic Views of the Present Democratic Outlook.

Old Si came into the sanctum yesterday morn g looking somewhat wearied and out of sorts.

"What is the matter with you now?" asked the olitical editor.

"Well, sah, sense I'se red dat far'well letter om Marse Tilden I'se bin all broke up in my eriterkil min', fer er fack!"

"It was too bad, wasn't it? But what do you hink of the democratic outlook on second houghts?"

"I'se jess hoddin' still an' waitin' ter see who's e nex' man at de bat. Mister Blaine may be able pitch er pow'ful curv'd ball, but Marse Tilden in't de only man in our team whut kin hit him er er home run!"

"That's so, and if we get the right man to lead ll we can win lots of independent republicans to ur side."

"Dat's ter be sho,' but we wants ter get er thur ered democrat all de same. W'en yer go ter 'p'int r kin'rel yer don't gib de vetterans de shake an' pend on de recroots ter pick out de man, does er?"

And this deliverance seemed to relieve the old man's mind of a very burdensome thought to his entire satisfaction.

Two Governors: 1876—1884.

From the New York World.

In 1876 the democratic party chose for its candidates for president and vice-president the two democratic governors of the two battle-ground states of the union—New York and Indiana.

Indiana then, as an October state, occupied as important a position as Ohio, the only northern October state now left, occupies at the present time. In 1876 we had no democratic governor in Ohio. Hayes was governor of Ohio when he ran for the presidency.

Tilden, who had carried New York by a handsome majority, was nominated for president, and Hendricks, who had redeemed Indiana, was made his associate on the ticket as vice-president.

It is natural that men's minds should turn in 1884, as they turned in 1876, to the democrats who to-day occupy the most naturally prominent positions as their candidates when they are in doubt as to Mr. Tilden's willingness to accept the nomination. Those democrats, with their laurels of victory still green, are the governors of Ohio and New York: Hoadly, who was elected by a large majority on the largest vote but one ever cast in his state and by a clear majority over all other candidates: Cleveland, who won an unprecedented victory in this state.

Hoadly and Cleveland are to-day democratic governors over two of the greatest states in the union, and they have one advantage on their side, the independents are already accustomed to vote for them. In Ohio and in New York the Independents contributed to their success. They trusted the two democratic governors and they have not been disappointed.

Hoadly and Cleveland or Cleveland and Hoadly would mean victory.

Couldn't Find a Pocket.

From the Morristown Herald.

A fire broke out in a dwelling house the other night, and after the man and his wife had safely reached the street the latter said that there was $800 in the pocket of her dress, hanging in a second story back room.

"I'll go for it," said the husband, and he plunged into the burning building.

The flames raged furiously, and the man did not return. At the expiration of an hour the fire was extinguished and the back building caved. Firemen groped their way up the rear stairs through water and blinding smoke, and found the man in the closet still fumbling at his wife's dress, looking for the money.

He was nearly suffocated with smoke, but had strength enough to say that he thought he would have found the pocket inside of two hours. It never occurred to him to seize the dress and rush out with that. Some men get so excited and nervous in time of fire.

A Collegiate Education.

From the New York Sun.

Young man (departing for college)—Well, father, good-bye. You may expect to hear from me often, and I trust that on my return you will find that I have not been unmindful of your self-sacrificing efforts to provide me with an education. Good-bye!

Father (with emotion)—Good-bye, my son, good-bye.

Young man (three months later. Arriving from college)—Ah, Governor, how do do? Delighted to see you, Rainbow. Beastly weather this; don't you know? How's the folks. Doosed glad so get home, etc., etc.

Death of Arthur H. Jameson.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 13.—[Special.]—Arthur H. Jameson, superintendent of the Chattanooga street railway company, died at the residence of Mr. C. A. Ruoff on Montgomery avenue this a. m. Jameson was about 30 years of age, unmarried, and leaves a sister. He is known all over the city as an industrious and excellent business man. He had been confined to his room for about two weeks with some sort of fever, but notwithstanding this fact, the announcement of his death will prove a surprise to many friends, who will greatly mourn the demise of a thoroughly good man.

SOLOMON.

I am the King who mystic power commanded;
I built the temple, ruined towns supreme;
Hiram, my architect, and Charos, my right-handed,
Still here beside me dream.

One as a trowel, one as sword, was given;
I let them plan, and what they did was well;
My breath mounts higher, nearer unto heaven
Than Liberian whirlwinds swell.

God sometimes feels it. Child of guilty kisses,
Vast, gloomy is my wisdom; demons shun
To take, between high heaven and their abysses
A judge but Solomon.

I make men tremble and believe my story;
Conquering, they hail and follow to my feast:
As King, I bear down mortals with the glory,
And with the gloom, as priest.

Mine was of festals and of cups the vision,
The finger writing mene tekel then,
And war and chariots, clarions and collision
Of horses and of men.

Grand as some sullen idol's form discloses,
Mysterious as a garden's closed retreat,
Yet, though I be more mighty than the roses
In moons of May are sweet.

Take from me scepter with the bright gold laden,
My throne, the archer on my tower above,
But men shall never take, O sweet young maiden,
From out my heart its love!

Men shall not take the love, O virgin purest,
That as in fountains beams to mirror thee,
More than from out the darkness of the forest
The song-bird's minstrsy!

NEW FEATURES AT WESLEYAN.

Dr. Bass said to-day: "I am happy to tell THE CONSTITUTION that the art rooms and gymnasium hall of Wesleyan are about completed and will soon be ready for the young ladies. The tower rooms are well located, and from the windows a most beautiful landscape can be viewed, and will serve as original copies. The calesthenics hall is a fav-rite of mine, and is both large and well ventilated. I am heartily in favor of physical development in young ladies, and this will prove a new feature in the future."

It was suggested to the doctor that the young ladies have a walking match.

"Oh," says he, "we have enough walking matches of our own without an exhibition. You see our young ladies walk a great deal on the long se ondes, eight times around which is a mile, and I tell you we have some fine pedestrians, and find that the exercise is most beneficial to their health."

Dr. Bass has done much for the promotion of the institute. He has labored assidously and to great advantage. When it was announced that it would require $40,000 to complete it he took the matter in charge, and under his management it was finished at a cost of only $12,600.

He Had Them Bad

AND IMAGINED ALL KINDS OF THINGS.

MACON, June 13.—[Special.]—This morning about 7 o'clock as officer Wray was walking his beat on Fourth street he was suddenly startled by a loud noise over head which was followed by a cry of murder and a man jumping from the shed above the distance of nearly fifteen feet. He ran to him and found him laboring under a peculiar idea of a man chasing him with a flying cannon. He was not hurt by his jump and was taken to his room in the Wilburn house. His name was A. N. Sharrock, and was from Texas. He is here in the interest of a patent fence, with his brother, G. W. Sharrock. During the morning he went out on the streets, and attracted much attention by his queer ideas and manner. He was arrested and taken to police headquarters. Chief Wiley remanded him to the ordinary, who was absent from the city. He was taken before Judge Simmons, who ruled that he had no jurisdiction in the matter. He was placed in the care of his brother. Later in the day he was arrested, and is in the barracks.

Mercer vs. Oxford,

THEAT TO WHICH IS TO OCCUR ON THURSDAY AT GRIFFIN.

Davis and B. H. Barfield being the young men appointed to that dignified position.

WYNTON.

Amid Thunder and Lightning.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 13.—The last concerts of the June musical festival were held amid storms of thunder, lightning and rain. The lightning struck the Coliseum yesterday afternoon, causing a panic in the audience attending the children's concert, but prompt action on the part of brave men and women, especially Theodore Thomas, who, finding the building was not on fire' signaled the orchestra to proceed, prevented any one being seriously injured, though in the house several ladies were carried fainting from the room.

THE STAR ROUTE SWINDLERS.

Mr. Merrick Gives the Story of the Prosecution—A Letter From Spencer.

WASHINGTON June 13.—Richard T. Merrick, of the government counsel in the star route prosecutions, was examined to-day by the committee investigating the trial of those cases. Messrs. Kerr and Bliss were present throughout his testimony to-day. Mr. Merrick confined himself to the facts and declined to express opinions. He said, "When I came into this case, I found that the atmosphere was filled with suspicion. We had at the department a list of individuals in congress who were supposed to have had more or less connection with these transactions. I found such was the condition of the public mind that whenever a name mentioned in connection with these matters, the mere mention was at once construed to express suspicion, and a mere suspicion soon grewinto a serious accusation. Therefore I directed that no man's name should be mentioned in connection with these matters, unless we had evidence to indict, because I was determined that the office and agencies of the department of justice should not be made the instruments of originating or circulating calumnies. The public mind is still sensitive on this subject, and the mere mention of a name, though the man be as innocent as the unfallen snow, might do harm and wrong some where.

THE SELECTION OF THE DORSEY CASE.

Mr. Merrick then reviewed his connection with the first trial. He said that Mr. Kerr prepared the indictments, that Bliss presented the evidence to the grand jury, and that he himself was on hand to be consulted whenever it might be necessary. His duty was to represent the attorney general.

"Why was the Dorsey case selected?" was asked.

"The evidence in that case, in my judgment, was such that any reasonable man would require to convict. It would have been the most extraordinary case to which I would have given preference. I have seldom had a case to try in court, the evidence of which was more satisfactory."

"What was the value of Walsh's testimony?"

"His testimony assumed a degree of importance beyond that to which it was entitled as a mere matter of law."

"Up to the time of the introduction of Walsh on the stand, the judge seemed to regard the case as quite insufficient, and it was partly dead. His testimony met the public inquiry, 'What has Brady had to do with the case?' It showed his uniform practice of charging for expediting."

"How did you overlook Walsh's testimony up to this time?"

"I don't know, as I was fully informed about what Walsh could tell. I think Woodward first told me. After I learned the purport of the evidence I had a consultation with Bliss as to its admissibility. We concluded it was proper, and I said Walsh must be produced.

WHEN WALSH GREW ANGRY.

After some time I met Walsh and told him I wanted him to testify in the Dorsey-Brady case. He said he would not testify in that case at all. He complained that he had been badly treated; that he had testified before the grand jury in reference to Kellogg, and that Bliss had cast a reflection upon him. He gave me an account of his testimony before the grand jury, and designated Bliss, whether justly or unjustly I do not know, as influencing the grand jury to disregard his evidence. His testimony in reference to Kellogg was the first I heard. I then may have spoken hastily of Bliss. I was excited and felt that if what Walsh said was true a great criminal had been allowed to escape. I told Walsh he should be fairly treated and vindicated. He agreed then to testify in the Dorsey-Brady case."

"Why was there a failure on the part of the jury to convict in the first trial?"

"The verdict was rendered finding Minor and Reerdell guilty and disagreeing as to other defendants. Those parties were tried for conspiracy to defraud the government of the United States. The court instructed the jury to consider the proof bearing on the subject of conspiracy and first determine whether or not there was a conspiracy, and second find who were in it. The finding against Reerdell and Minor was a necessity predicated upon the finding o the existence of a conspiracy. The evidence showed that they had no direct relation with each other, but they were subordinate to Dorsey and others. The jury found the subordinates guilty as having conspired, but could not agree as to the principals, and yet that jury was remarkably intelligent."

"And they had more brains than the average?" interposed Mr. Vanalstyer.

"Gentlemen, draw your own inferences," Mr. Merrick continued. "I thought the verdict a disgrace, and was determined to get rid of it and succeeded. I was greatly surprised at it, and if you had heard my vernacular just then you would have thought I was surprised."

REERDEL AS A WITNESS.

"How did it happen that you used Reerdel as a witness in the second trials?"

"I examined Reerdell's affidavits with care and found that they contained a great deal of important information. The determination to let him become a witness was not reached till the evening before he come on the stand. We had the worst jury I ever saw summoned. I never saw such a bad jury, bad in every respect. There were some men on that jury who could not read or write. They compelled us to take men who had not formed an opinion on the case. Nearly every intelligent man had formed an opinion. I had the evidence of the previous trial, but thought with such a jury I needed such testimony as Reerdell could give."

The witness referred to the letters alleged to have been sent by Dorsey to Bosler, relative to the interest of the defendants in the star-route and percentage of profits accruing therefor. On letter was said to have been written by Reerdell and signed by Dorsey. The letter press copy came into the possession of the government's counsel. Bosler was subpoenaed to appear as a witness to testify that he had received the original letter. He was detained in Washington, and while waiting to be called to the stand Mr. Merrick said he was approached by an individual who asked that Reerdell be relieved from the subpœna. Mr. Merrick replied that all he desired was the letter, and that he could be obtained. He was willing to excuse witness.

LETTING OFF A WITNESS.

An effort was made by several members of the committee to get Merrick to tell who the individual was that asked for Bosler's discharge as a witness. He refused, however, to do so. When the committee adjourned Mr. Merrick was testifying relative to the efforts to indict Kellogg before his case should be barred by the tatute of limitations. He said Bliss asked the court to recall the grand jury that the case might be presented. That jury was reconvened, Bliss appeared before it with Walsh, and the jury refused to indict Kellogg. Merrick will continue his testimony to-morrow.

Chairman Springer received the following letter from ex-Senator Spencer dated Washington, June 12th."

"I see by the papers that S. W. Dorsey has written you a letter in which, among others, he says I demanded that he should pay $12,000 and for it I would see that he was granted immunity in the late "star route" trials. I pronounce this statement of Dorsey as absolutely false in every particular. I never made such a demand of him, and never had such a conversation with him, or any other person on the subject. My testimony can be had at any time you desire."

A Military Fete.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 13.—[Special.]—The Montgomery True Blues, commanded by Captain A. B. Garland, gave a prize drill to-night, which was witnessed by a large audience, a great many ladies being present. The prize plume was won by Mr. John Barker. The drilling was very creditable, the company having improved very much. Extensive preparations are now being made to make the second regiment encampment a success. A large crowd is expected from all parts of the state.

MYSTERY OF MYSTERIES.

THE MURDERER OF MRS. JENNIE ROSE YET UNDISCOVERED.

A Mystery That Puzzles the Police, But is Clay in the Hands of the Theorists—The Jury in Secret Session—The Husband at the Funeral—The Tracks in the Yard.

The twelve men who are investigating the murder of Mrs. Jennie Rose locked themselves in, yesterday, when they heard the testimony of the witnesses, some thirty or forty of whom had been gathered into a room at police headquarters. The jury occupied the office of Chief Connolly while the witnesses were in an adjoining room. The investigation lasted from two until near seven, but concerning the developments but little is said outside. The coroner and jurymen are dumb as oysters. The jury of inquest has determined to spare no pains in the investigation, and every effort possible will be made to discover the perpetrator of the dastardly murder. That was fully determined on, and the work of detection has been started with redoubled energy. Solicitor General Hill was present at yesterday's investigation and conducted the examination of witnesses. At 7 o'clock the jury adjourned to meet again on Friday next, to give the officers time to work on the facts that came out at yesterday's inquest. Every theory is being examined by the best officers on the force, and everything that looks like a clue will be sifted to the bottom.

HOW THE THEORIES STAND.

The detail of officers who are working the theory that Rose murdered his wife do so with a firm belief that they are on the right track. They are aware that they have a difficult task, but they are working zealously. Officer Nolan was the first policeman to reach the house on the night of the murder, and with the others worked hard on an investigation of the various tracks. They found under the window tracks made by a man in his stocking feet. This track from the outside measurements was ten inches, so Officer Nolan says. It went from the fence to the window and from the window to the fence, and a few yards away a place was found where the man sat down and put on his shoes. Further down the street this track was joined by the track of a female, and the two persons walked up and down the street very considerably. Rose has not yet had his foot measured, but if it should fit the measure of the track in the yard it would be a very strong circumstance against him. Most people have given up the theory that Clara Suggs was connected with the murder, but the theory that Rose and Miss Frazier did it has gained additional advocates. The fact that Miss Frazier put on her shoes before she ran out to give the alarm is considered a very strange proceeding indeed, when a woman's impulse would naturally have been to run out without ceremony, screaming with fright.

The measure of her track was taken, and strange to say, was the same as that of the female who walked around on the street near the house. Few, however, believe that the two tracks were made by the same person. There are points as to this theory which, of course, it would not be proper to give, as an undue prejudice might be raised against innocent parties. There are those who believe that the murderer did not pass through the window at all, but that the appearances of burglar work were only for a blind.

THE BURGLARY THEORY.

The burglar theory found shape in the arrest of Sim Morton as was stated in yesterday's CONSTITUTION, but no other arrests have been made yet. Morton is a coal black negro of massive frame, low forehead, and an extremely brutal cast of countenance. He is a man of many words, talking like an exhorter, and impressing everyone who sees him as being a bad character. He is, however, the head man of the "Deborah" benevolent society, and seems sorely distressed that a man of his many good deeds should be so ruthlessly snatched up on a charge of murder. He will endeavor to prove an alibi, claiming that on the fateful night he was at the house of "Sister Hannah Roberts," where he had dropped in on society business and accidentally went to sleep in a chair. Sister Roberts then tendered him a bed which he thankfully accepted and rested there until daybreak. He is not married but lives with his parents only a few doors from the house of Rose. He is a whitewasher, but it is said that he does very little work. He made $1.75 last week he says.

A TALK WITH THIS PRISONER.

A CONSTITUTION man talked to Morton for quite a while yesterday, and found the prisoner deeply grieved that he should be thought guilty.

"To think," said he, "that anybody should accuse me of killing that poor white lady. Why, I am as innocent as a new-born babe," and Morton raised his eyes to the ceiling in righteous wonder. He talked incessantly, the burden of what he said being that he was far above a crime so base and terrible. He said that he never was charged with a crime before.

There is some strong circumstantial evidence against Morton, and the officers who are working the case against him are positive that he is the guilty party, but they are not sanguine of a conviction unless additional evidence is secured.

THE WOMEN RELEASED.

The two women, Nancy Frazier and Clara Suggs, were released from custody about 5 o'clock yesterday, and went home from the police station together. They were mad as fury and refused to be interviewed.

THE FUNERAL OF MRS. ROSE.

The body of the murdered woman was taken to Flowery Branch yesterday morning by the Air-Line train. She was buried four miles from there. Mr. Rose went, Officer Nolan having him in custody. He was very solemn but shed no tears on the trip. He returned last night at midnight and was taken to the police station. He is confident of a final acquittal.

DO NOT BELIEVE HIM GUILTY.

It is said that the Air Line attaches do not believe he is guilty. The statement of the night watchman, Mr. Wadsworth, that Rose played cards with him at the depot from eleven until he was called for by the engineer, and notified of his wife's death they regard as conclusive when taken in connection with the previous good character of the man. He was at Faith's bar, so two officers will swear, at a quarter or half past eleven. Rose says he was there between ten and eleven.

STRANGE HE DID NOT HEAR IT.

Mr. Cleveland, who lives two or three doors below the Rose house, says he was awakened when his clock struck twelve. The clock was half an hour too fast so that the real city time was half past eleven. He did not go to sleep any more until the arlarm of the murder was given, which was at ten minutes to one by his time or twenty past twelve real time. He says he did not hear the pistol shot.

DEEPER MYSTERY THAN THE DEFOOR.

The police are agreed that there is more mystery about this murder than there was about the DeFoor killing; that there is less hold for an officer to get—more mystery and less clue. The officers are all working with a will and may, however, strike the right trail and follow it to success.

THE DRESS COMES BACK.

The missing dress turned up mysteriously night before last in one of the trunks that had been time and again searched for it without success. The only missing article now is the pistol with which the murder was committed.

AN ACTRESS'S TROUBLE.

Lillian Spencer Who Fainted on the Atlanta Stage Seeks a Divorce.

PITTSBURG, June 13.—In the divorce suit of Lillian Spencer, the actress, against her husband, Edward Clayburg, Mrs. Clayburg has filed a bill of particulars telling what she expects to prove on the trial of the case. She says:

My trouble with Clayburg began in the spring of 1880. At that time my husband threatened my life. I was then making my own living and his too. This was about twelve weeks after our marriage. I was obliged not only to keep myself, but was obliged to keep him in his extravagant display, and consequently, at the end of that season at Madison Square theater all my earnings were spent. He refused to give me the proceeds of an engagement here in Pittsburg shortly after that, and during my illness in Atlanta, where I fainted while playing my part, his treatment was almost unbearable.

I was compelled to leave home just after this, although in poor health. On my friends interfering with his brutal conduct, he threatened to shoot me or anybody else who interfered, and said that he would leave me only over my dead body. I returned to New York with him, and he informed me that all communication with my family must cease, and afterwards he intercepted all letters and telegrams sent to me. When my baby was a few weeks old he told me "to get out and go home as soon as I liked."

While I was with the "White Slave" company he traveled with me and collected my salary, and out of $170 a week sometimes only handed me $2. My child was with my mother, and I gathered $20 to send to my nurse. He discovered that I sent it by express and demanded the receipt. When I refused he drew his revolver and watch, and gave me two minutes to produce the receipt or die. As I feared losing my position and was greatly in need of money I let the matter pass at the time."

It is also charged that Clayburg used his wife's money for all kinds of dissipation.

SHOOTING AT A MAYOR.

A Revenue Man Sends a Bullet Towards Dallas' Mayor's Head Yesterday.

Passengers who came in on the East Tennessee train last night tell of an attempt to assassinate G. P. Roberts, the mayor of Dallas, in Paulding county. It appears that G. W. Foote was arrested in Dallas several weeks ago and was fined by the mayor but failee to pay the fine, alleging that he was distressed pecuniarily. Not long ago Foote secured work in the internal revenue department, and yesterday when he was in Dallas, Mayor Roberts directed Marshal Chesney to collect the fine of arrest Foote. The marshal demanded the fine, and during his conversation with Foote Mayor Roberts passed near him. As soon as the mayor came under Foote's observation Foote jerked out his pistol and pointing it at the mayor fired. As the trigger was drawn Marshal Chesney knocked the pistol up and the ball went over Mayor Roberts's head. Foote was arrested.

Selma and the Coal Fields.

From the Selma Times.

Colonel C. C. NeSmith, president of the Chicago and Pensacola Grand Trunk railway company, is in the city, and stated to the Times last night that his visit is for the purpose of putting in a building plant, to follow up the survey, which Major M. G. Kennedy, chief engineer, has completed to the Ocmulgee valley, a distance of twelve miles. The road will be begun very soon, arrangements being perfected for its starting. He says he is not on a begging expedition at all, though he would be glad to see Selma sufficiently interested in the enterprise to take its first mortgage bonds. He plans, if Selma desires and will co-operate, to have a public demonstration at the breaking of dirt by a baptism with waters from Lake Michigan, the Ohio, the Tennessee, the Warrior, the Tombigbee and Alabama rivers and the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic ocean, all of which are touched or crossed by the main stem or arms. If it is desired, eminent speakers will be secured for the purpose of delivering addresses on the system, its benefit and the prominence it is to hold in the future development of the west and south. We hail with pleasure the confident statement of Colonel NeSmith that this road is to be begun and finished, and wish the enterprise all success.

It is hoped that early and later rains will fall upon it just at the proper time, and we hope to be able to chronicle the result as an abundant yield.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM DUGAS TRAMMELL, born in Harris county, Ga., in 1849, died in Fort Worth, Texas, June 6, 1884. Mr. Trammell was graduated from the university of Georgia, in 1870, while that famous school was under the control of Dr. A. A. Lipscomb, by whom Mr. Trammell was regarded as a young man of remarkable talent and unusual promise.

Leaving school he engaged in the practice of the law, but occasionally found recreation in literary pursuits. His chief literary work was "Ca Ira," a novel published about 1873, in which the author embodied views of thesocial, industrial and political relations of mankind, that excited much comment. Mr. Trammellwas an earnest advocate of the rights of the common people, and at the time of his death was vice president of the "Workingmen's international association," which had its headquarters in New York city.

He was a devoted son and a loving, affectionate brother, and the idolof his family, mother, sister and brother, who looked to him, and not in vain, for counsel and support.

Wonderfully conversant with political history for one so young, fond of metaphysical and abstract reasoning, wit a keen relish for all speculative philosophy, and entertaining views of social and political rights at wholly in sympathy with his time and generation, he was regarded by many as an extremist. Yet his great capabilities were conceded by all who knew him; and, in a less utilitarian age, withfavorable surroundings, he would have attained eminence as a philosopher, and a student and expounder of political history.

We trust that the great mystery of life, the great theme of his speculaive mind has been revealed to him in perpetual liss.

Bonds, Stocks and Money.

CONSTITUTION OFFICE,
ATLANTA, June 13, 1884.

There is a moderate inquiry for Atlanta city and State of Georgia bonds. Central railroad stock continues to decline, the condition of the money market and the recent declaration of only a 2½ per cent dividend having affected it. There is apprehension on the part of some holders of Georgia railroad stock that the Louisville and Nashville difficulties may affect the lease, and the stock has been offered more freely in consequence.

Money is in demand at 10@12 per cent.

New York exchange buying at par; selling at $1.50 @ 1,000 premium.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported in the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The share market was active and buoyant during the greater part of the day, with a general improvement in prices for both leading and inactive stocks, with the exception of a fractional reaction. Almost immediately after the opening there was an uninterrupted advance until about 11 o'clock, when Missouri Pacific, Lackawanna and Western Union were the leading features; Missouri Pacific rose 1¼, Lackawanna 1⅞, Western Union 2 per cent. The improvement in other active stocks were less marked; subsequently the bears made a sharp drive on Union Pacific; it was freely reported that the company's floating debt amounted to $11,000,000. The stock broke 2 per cent, and the other shares declined in sympathy. At the decline there were heavy purchases for both accounts, under which the best prices of the day were reached. The market during the afternoon was buoyant. Near the close there was a reaction of ¼@1 per cent, due to the realizations, but in final dealings the market became firm again. The fact that Missouri Pacific continued to show remarkable strength frightened the bears, more particularly as it was freely reported that Western Union would next be taken in hand by movers of Missouri Pacific and advanced in order to make shorts cover. The upward movement in the general list, stimulated by the action of the representatives of the trunk lines, who at a meeting to-day determined to advance rates on grain from Chicago to New York to 25 cents, the new order to take effect in ten days, hence this notice is in accordance with a previous agreement by the trunk lines. This advance in eastbound rates is regarded as evidence that the relations of various roads are harmonious, and accordingly imparted a more confident feeling among operators. Another reason for the strength of the market was a statement by Q. L. Ames, of the Union Pacific, that the floating debt of the company, which has been reported for several days $11,000,000 was in reality only $5,500,000, if an allowance be made for off-sets, such as cash on hand, bills and accounts, and securities other than investment and materials on hand. Compared with last night's close, prices were 2½ per cent higher for Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, 1¾ Northwest and Rock Island, 1¼ St. Paul, 3¼ Lackawanna, 2 Michigan Central, 1 Louisville and Nashville, 1¼ Lake Shore, 3⅞ Missouri Pacific, 1 Jersey Central, 1¼ Western Union, and 1¼@1⅞ in the remainder of the list. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movements in Grain and Produce.

By telegraph to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, June 13—The markets showed more steadiness to-day. Considerable weakness was shown in wheat early in the day's trading, but reported heavy rains in California and consequent damage to the growing crop induced a firmer feeling and prices advanced 1c from the lowest point of the day. July sold down to 87⅝c, advanced to 88⅝@88¾c and closed on the regular board at 88¾c. On the afternoon board the closing quotations were 88⅝c for July and 89⅜c for August.

Corn was rather strong during most of the session, advancing ⅛@⅜c early, eased off slightly, fluctuated and closed ⅛@⅜c better than yesterday. July closed at 55⅞c, August at 56⅞c and ruled at the same figures on the afternoon board.

Oats were firmer and prices ranged ⅛@⅜c higher. On the afternoon board a further appreciation occurred and the latest quotations of the day were 22½c for June, 32¾c for July and 28¾c for August.

There was very little doing in provisions. The price of mess pork dropped off somewhat, and the latest figures on the afternoon board were $13.70 for June, July and August.

Lard closed at $8.00 for June, $8.12½ for July and $8.25 for August.

Mr. McLaughlin, the stone mason, who was so seriously hurt by a fall a few days ago was much better yesterday morning and his friends now believe he will recover.

Last night a horse hitched to a street hack took fright near the Union passenger depot and ran away. The hack was almost completely demolished on Pryor street by the piles of Belgian blocks.

THE FIRST CAMPAIGN FIGHT.

An Ex-Councilman and a Carriage Builder Mingle in Pugilistic Style.

Mr. William Reynolds, the ex-councilman from the fifth ward, and Mr. A. T. Finney, the carriage builder, will appear as defendants in police court this morning. The two gentlemen are charged with disorderly conduct and quarreling, and the evidence in the cases will show that they have opened the campaign fights. Late Thursday night Messrs. Reynolds and Finney met in the heart of the fifth ward, and as the county democratic convention was at that time in session, their conversation naturally drifted into politics. At first they agreed, but as the conversation progressed and their views were laid out they found that they were not unanimous. The breach grew until the two gentlemen began quarreling and the quarrel raged until they grappled in war, but just as the first blow was struck and returned, Patrolman Tom Aldridge stepped in and separated them. Neither gentleman was injured in the difficulty and yesterday mutual friends busied themselves in adjusting the affair and it is said their efforts were successful.

TO THE ORPHANS' ASYLUM.

Lysander Baysaw the Boy Who Broke up the School Thursday.

Lysander Baysaw, the young African who caused the session of the colored school on Mitchell street to be cut short Thursday by drawing a pistol, will be taken to the orphans' asylum at Chattanooga, Tenn., next Tuesday. Baysaw is a small yellow boy of about a dozen years. He is particularly bright and was being educated at the Mitchell street school, and cared for by one of the teachers. His mind is quick, but his disposition is not so good, and some time ago he began making trouble. Thursday afternoon he refused to obey his teacher, and when he was about to be punished he drew a small pistol from his pocket and dared anyone to touch him. His defiant attitude and his determined character gave him the victory for the time being, but later in the day he was turned over to Patrolman Myers, by whom he was taken to the city prison and given a cell. The teachers do not wish to prosecute him, and have made arrangements for his admission into the orphans' asylum in Chattanooga, where his bad temper will be given especial care.

CLIMBING A LADDER.

How Thieves Relieved Dr. Carpenter of his Breakfast—Up a Ladder into a Window.

Night before last thieves entered Dr. Carpenter's residence, 158 Rawson street, and relieved him of about everything he had in the way of edibles. The thieves showed that they were no amateurs in the business, and that they began the robbery with no thought of a failure. Before entering the residence they went into the backyard where they found a ladder. This they placed against the house near a window. Then they climbed the ladder, and raising the window entered the house. Once inside they proceeded on a tour of investigation, taking with them just what they wanted of what they saw. The thieves appeared to be hungry, and devoted themselves more particularly to the pantry, and when they left that part of the residence it was almost entirely empty. The theft was detected early yesterday morning, when the cook began preparing breakfast and caused an instant visit to the doctor's grocer. Nothing of any value has yet been missed by Dr. Carpenter, who reported the theft at police headquarters yesterday.

POSTAL CROOKEDNESS.

The Bond of a Postmaster Turns Out to be Forged—Arrested.

Chief Postoffice Inspector Myler returned from South Carolina yesterday where he has been looking after an important piece of postal crookedness. Last July Mrs. Susan Arthur was made postmistress at Macedonia, Lexington county, South Carolina. Her bond was fixed at $500, the office being an unimportant one, paying only one or two hundred dollars a year. George T. Arthur, her son, twenty-three years old, who was to be assistant postmaster, was detailed to get the bond signed up. He found considerable difficulty in getting up the bond, but finally came to time and with an apparently good bond, and everything was serene. Last February, however, it was positively settled that the names to the bond had been forged, and to evade the officers, Mrs. Arthur and and George T. and David F. Arthur left Macedonia, and for several months have succeeded in keeping out of the way. Inspector Myler at last took them in, however, and on Tuesday last they were all taken before a commissioner at Columbia, S. C., where they were tried. The boys went to jail in default of $2,000 and the old lady gave a bond for $500 and was released. Young Arthur made a free and full confession, taking all the blame on himself. He forged all the names, even that of his mother. C. T. Hopkins and Milledge Fallow were on the bond. The name of the justice of the peace, H. O. Martin, was also forged. The mother of the boys is 66 years old. The boys are also charged with rifling registered letters.

WHITEHALL STREET.

The Horrible Condition of one of the City's Principal Thoroughfares.

Whitehall street, from the railroad to Mitchell street, was probably never in a worse condition than at present. It is a series of gullies, and mudholes and, in many places, large crossing stones have been upturned and now lay on the bare surface of the street. With a vehicle it is almost impassable. It should be looked after, and if it is not to be paved soon, it should at least be put in a passable condition until it can be permantly fixed.

A BULLET IN THE HEAD.

A Small White Boy Shoots a Small Negro Boy—A Dangerous Wound.

Day before yesterday a thirteen year old son of Mr. Gray, a merchant who transacts business near the Glendale paper mill, shot a small negro boy in the head, inflicting an exceedingly dangerous wound. Intelligence of the shooting reached the city yesterday evening, and THE CONSTITUTION'S informant asserts that the negro child is in an exceedingly dangerous condition. It appears that Master Gray and several children were playing near the store, and that he had a small pistol in his pocket which he drew out and flourished around. While swinging the pistol through the air it went off, the ball entering the negro boy's head near the right temple, and passing downward lodged under and behind the eye, making a dangerous wound. The shooting was purely accidental, as Maste Gray did not know that the pistol was loaded. His father did not know that he had the revolver and is doing all that he can for the wounded boy. Dr. Griffin was sent for immediately after the shooting happened. The wound is considered a dangerous one but the doctor believes that the boy may pull through all right.

AN ATTEMPT AT MURDER.

A Defenseless Woman Shot at Near the River Thursday Night.

Thursday night another dastardly attempt on the life of a defenseless woman occurred at Bolton, seven miles from the city. At about 8 o'clock, Dr. W. C. Fisher was called out professionally and while out some miscreant walked up to the window of his house and leveling a shot gun fired at Mrs. E. F. Schell, the mother-in-law of Dr. Fisher, the shots lodging in the wall just over her head. Her two daughters and two little boys were in the room, and she coolly ordered one of the boys to go in another room and bring her a pistol. The order was quickly executed but the wouldbe murderer had vanished before the boy's return, leaving no clew whatever. Mrs. Schell is to be congratulated on her close escape, for had the villain aimed a foot lower the major portion of the load would have taken effect in her head.

No cause can be assigned for the deed, except robbery. It seems that Dr. Fisher had collected several hundred dollars from the railroads in Atlanta on that day and the supposition is that the person who fired the shot knew of this fact, and supposing he would take it home instead of depositing it in bank in Atlanta, he could easily make a rich haul by killing or frightening the ladies in Dr. Fisher's absence. The party evidently was quite familiar with the surroundings of the place. Mrs. Schell had about $150 in the house, but has decided it is safer in the bank, and should a second attempt be made it would be a bootless errand.

RAIDING THE RAILROADS.

Demands for Damages for Divers' Defaults and Disasters.

In the superior court yesterday the trial of the damage case of Bloomingdale vs. the Western and Atlantic railroad company was concluded. The testimony was speedily concluded during the morning, and did not materially change the status of the case as reported in these columns yesterday. The case was argued very fully and earnestly for the railroad company by Mr. Julius L. Brown and Captain W. D. Ellis, while the interests of the plaintiff were vigorously and ably represented by Colonel George T. Fry. The jury listened with interest and attention to the arguments of counsel and the plain and comprehensive charge of the court. After about an hour of deliberation the jury returned into court at 6 p. m., with a verdict for the plaintiff for $2,500. Counsel for the railroad gave notice that they would move for a new trial and the lengthy transcript of the record will be immediately prepared for that purpose. In the event of the motion being refused the case will go to the supreme court and involve the decision of some very nice and important legal principles.

THE M'BETH CASE.

In the city court the case of Charles R. McBeth vs. the Richmond and Danville railroad company is on trial. McBeth was a train hand on a freight train on the Air-Line road, and on the night of the 3d of May, 1882, at Norcross, he was struck by the bell rope of the train and thrown to the track between the cars. The train was in motion and the wheels passed over McBeth's left leg, crushing it and necessitating its amputation below the knee. McBeth alleges that he was in the proper discharge of his duties at the time of the accident and was in no wise responsible for the occurrence. He sues the company for $10,000 damages. The case could not be concluded last evening, and the further hearing was postponed until Monday next. Mr. Hoke Smith represents the plaintiff and the railroad company is defended by Hopkins & Glenn. The case will be stubbornly contested.

A Cow Thief Arrested.

Several weeks ago a valuable cow was stolen from Judge Anderson, of the police court. The morning after the theft was committed the entire police force was advised of it. Every member avowed his desire to capture the thief and a strict watch was kept until the cow was recovered. A few days ago Patrolman Prysock obtained information inducing him to believe that George Tucker, a negro man, had committed the theft. The patrolman quietly began an investigation and yesterday arrested Tucker. When the patrolman found Tucker he was working in Lynch's quarry and had no means of escaping. Tucker denies any knowledge of the crime, but Patrolman Prysock claims that he has an abundance of evidence to secure a conviction. Tucker was given a cell in the city prison where he will remain until a preliminary trial can be had.

Bad News Bates.

Yesterday a colored woman near the Air-Line shops was screaming at a most distressing rate that attracted the attention of a CONSTITUTION man who inquired the cause of her lamentation. It developed that her son, Jim Crowder, was killed by a train in Birmingham a week ago and that by a combination of circumstances the news had failed to reach the mother. She only heard of it yesterday.

DUBIOUS DIPLOMAS

ISSUED BY THE GEORGIA ECLECTIC MEDICAL COLLEGE.

The Institution of a Suit by the Governor for $15,000 of Penalties—What the Law Says About Granting Diplomas—Three Cases of Violations of the Statute Cited.

A very important suit was filed in the superior court yesterday, which sounds as H. D. McDaniel, governor, ex rel. Jas. Hardy, vs. the Georgia Eclectic Medical college. The suit is brought by the governor at the instance of James Hardy to recover certain penalties incurred by the medical college under section 4562 (a) of the code of Georgia. The case will excite very general interest throughout the medical profession of the state, and very probably give rise to numerous controversies between the allopathic and electric practitioners.

ISSUING ILLEGAL DIPLOMAS.

An act of the legislature of Georgia provides that "it shall be unlawful for the faculty or officers of any medical college in the state of Georgia to grant or issue a diploma to any student or other person, unless said student or other person shall have attended two or more full courses of study in some regularly-chartered medical college in good standing, and shall have submitted to and passed a creditable examination by the faculty or professors of said college upon all the branches usually taught in medical colleges." It is further provided that if any faculty, or officers of a medical college, shall violate the provisions of this section "they shall be subject to a fine of $5,000 to be collected out of the property of any or all of said faculty or officers of said college." Upon the collection of this penalty in any case one-half of the sum is to go to the person furnishing the information and the other half is to be paid into the county treasury for the sole benefit of the county educational fund.

THE CASES SUED ON.

In the suit just brought it is alleged that the Georgia Eclectic Medical college did, on or about the 1st of March, 1882, grant diplomas to M. C. Martin and M. L. Lichenstadt, and on March 1st, 1883, granted a diploma to B. F. Thurman. It is alleged that these diplomas were unlawfully granted in violation of the section of the code above cited. Dr. M. C. Martin is at No. 212 Decatur street and is now city physician of the fourth ward. Dr. Maurice L. Lichenstadt is practicing at No. 3½ Whitehall street. Dr. B. F. Thurman is a non-resident of the city.

THE PARTIES SUED.

The suit is against the faculty and board of trustees of the college, and is for $15,000. The faculty is composed of Joseph Adolphus, dean; I. J. M. Goss, G. W. Delbridge, J. F. Hammond and W. M. Durham; the board of trustees embraces Dr. S. T. Biggers, Osborne A. Lochrane, Rolly P. S. Kimbro, William R. Phillips, Sr., W. L. Hubbard, W. T. Park, Fielding T. Powell and F. M. Coker, Sr. They are severally and collectively cited to appear at the next term of the superior court and answer this action for the penalties named.

Should the case be determined against the college people, they will have to pay the heavy fines. Hardy, the informer, will receive $7,500 of the sum, and the balance will go to the county educational fund. The suit will be prosecuted by B. H. Hill, Jr., solicitor-general, R. B. Trippe and Judge H. B. Tompkins.

Harry Jackson---Congress.

The Chronicle and Constitutionalist has this to say about the above named gentleman in connection with the decision of the Southern Mutual insurance company case:

"The victory has been a conspicuous professional triumph for Captain Henry Jackson and a valuable pecuniary victory. His case has been the subject of much ridicule. He laughs best who laughs last. Under discouragements and unkind prediction he has steadily fought the matter to a complete triumph. The thing illustrates his qualities. He has pre-eminently energy, push, courage, ability. He is self reliant and determined, full of resources and unconquerable. The same qualities will make him a magnificently useful representative in congress."

Malarial Poison.

ROME, GA., May 22, 1883.

With the hope that it will reach the eye of other sufferers, I desire to make a statement of my case and my wonderful rescue from death from malarial blood poison by the use of the great S. S. S. (Swift's Specific.

In 1880 I came from the north to take charge of the gas works in Rome, as superintendent, and after the overflow, which occurred in the spring following, I was very much exposed to malarial poison, and in 1882 found my blood so contaminated with the poison that I was forced to give up business. I was treated by the Rome physicians without relief, they advising me to go north, which I did. The doctors north told me that my only hope was to return to the milder climate, and accordingly I came back to Rome, completely broken down and nearly a skeleton. My trouble finally determined in an abscess of the liver, and nearly every one (myself included) thought I was doomed to die within a few days. In this condition I was advised by a friend to take Swift's Specific, and I took it just as a drowning man would catch at a straw, but as soon as my system got under the influence of the remedy, the abscess came to a point and burst, passing off without pain. In fifteen days after this I was up at my work, and have since enjoyed excellent health.

Every sufferer from malarial poison should take Swift's Specific. C. G. SPENCER,

There never was a time when boys wouldn't be boys. The above picture represents a party of jubilant lads "glad with the joy of school let out," capering away in glee to their homes. Before reaching there, however, they needs must engage in some rough and tumble fun, and probably succeed in tearing their clothes in a dozen places. That's right; let them have their fun. Youth will soon be gone, and there is a freshness and exhuberance about it that makes older people wish that they were in their places. Sensible parents will never object to having their boys come home with ruffled clothing; at the same time they know it is good sense and judgment to provide such clothes as will stand the wear and tear of any kind of rough or boisterous usage. The spring months have passed, and the clothing bought early in the season must by now be considerably worn. Nothing could be better or nicer for your boys than a suit of our summer goods—just the thing to use at commencement occasions, besides insuring genteel looks and wear that will last until the early fall months. We will guarantee to fit your boys out as well as anybody and actually alarm you with cheap prices.

MEETINGS.

Metropolitan Street Railroad Company Stockholders' Meeting.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Metropolitan street railroad company will be held at the office of Julius L. Brown, room 2, Brown block, 28 Wall street, Atlanta, Ga., Saturday, June 21st, 1884, at 11 o'clock, a. m. A full attendance is much desired. JULIUS L. BROWN, President.

KICKING AGAINST A COMP.

A Settlement That is Claimed Not to Have Settled Anything.

Some time ago J. S. McDonald, a young man about eighteen years of age, was injured while in the employment of the Western and Atlantic railroad company. He was engaged in coupling cars when, through some defect in the bumpers, he was caught between the cars and terribly mashed. He was injured internally and ruptured, and his injuries were pronounced of such character as to permanently affect his health, strength and capacity to earn a fair living at his accustomed daily labor. His mother, Mrs. T. S. Wilson, instituted suit against the railroad company for the loss of the services of her son, and as next friend for him, sued for $5,000 damages on his account. The suits were brought at her instance by Messrs. Cox and Hammond. Recently, without consultation with or the consent of her attorneys, she went to the attorney of the railroad company, Mr. Julius L. Brown, and proposed a compromise of the cases. After some negotiations she settled her own suit, which she had a right to do, and then compromised the case of her son for about $200 in cash. When her attorneys heard of the transaction they repudiated the settlement so far as the son was concerned and gave notice yesterday in open court of a motion to have another "next friend" appointed for McDonald to further prosecute his claim. Mr. Brown claims that the settlement was made in regular form and with every reason to believe that it was acquiesced in by all parties at interest. The motion to substitute another "next friend" will be heard next Friday. If the settlement is held to be binding the motion will be denied; otherwise it will be granted, and the suit will go forward as if no compromise had ever been mooted.

CHARTER CHAT.

Items About Incorporations That Are to be Inaugurated.

The first mutual building association ever organized among the colored people of the city is soon to commence operations. The charter for the "Union Loan and Building Association" was granted yesterday, and the legal inauguration of the company will soon be effected. The incorporators are well-known and well-to-do colored men of this city, and they expect their association to work great practical good to their membership through the saving of money and the building of neat and comfortable homes for hundreds of its patrons.

The charter for the "West End Improvement company" was also granted yesterday and this new and excellent association will be organized in legal form at an early day. The object of the association being to buy and improve real estate in the handsome and thrifty suburb of West End,an early and rapid increase in the value of property in that township may be looked for.

Application for a charter for the "Central Bank Block association" is pending and will be granted before the close of the term. This is the association of James's creditors, who contemplate taking in hand the bank block and out of it realizing in the course of years the full amount of the balance of their deposit losses.

David H. Dougherty.

There is a great deal of talk about shirts and at low prices. My claim is that I undersell everybody in these goods. I guarantee that I give the best material, the best workmanship, the best fit and the lowest prices on shirts for spot cash. SHIRTS! SHIRTS! SHIRTS!

David H. Dougherty.

I am exceedingly gratified at the large trade of the past week. Crowds of people came and the onslaught on lawns, satteens, towels, napkins, doylies, table linen, and especially on all kinds of summer dress goods was tremendous. Every customer went away pleased at the bargains made and all was merry as a marriage bell.

David H. Dougherty.

We will make a drive on silks, black and colored, this week. Let others quote prices, I will match goods, and undersell them. Spot Cash tells.

David H. Dougherty.

The ladies will fairly rave with delight when they examine this week my beautiful pieces of

Figured Satteens, Figured Lawns
AND FIGURED LINENS.

These goods will make up very pretty and then the prices they are marked for spot cash are more satisfactory still. Big line of

It is about time to open out big drives in every department of Summer Goods to close them out. Keep your eye on the mark for I am now daily slaughtering prices on different lines of goods. To close out Spot Cash is on the war path. Bargains are to be had and frequent visits are advisable.

David H. Dougherty.

Grand drives for this week in all Summer Goods.

SPOT CASH RULES THE DAY!

David H. Dougherty

will give special prices for this week on Hand chiefs, Gloves, White Fans, Silks, black and colored, all Dress Goods, Satteens figured Lawns and Linens, figured Towels, Napkins, Table Linen and shoes. I invite you to call.

David H. Dougherty.

No harm to examine other prices, but do not buy till you see the prices of the Spot Cash house. It is to your interest to do that and there is no need far me to urge it.

D. H. Dougherty.

Not only are we selling quantities of Drees Goods now, but my grade in Gloves, White Fans, and Handkerchiefs show that my prices have struck rock bottom. Spot cash is a great power.

D. H. Dougherty

The season is far advanced and shoes would go slowly at regular prices. I have, therefore ordered big cut in these. Spot cash has that knife in hand and you will be astonished at the prices of them to-day. Come and buy, prices are way down and Dougherty's is the place to buy shoes.

David H. Dougherty.

Some dealers advertise what seems to be astounding prices on a few pieces of goods, but I do not. I make the statement that I sell lower than any other house. The public believe this and come to my store, knowing they can buy a better grade of goods for less money for Spot Cash than the advertised catch prices.

D. H. Dougherty.

Among special drives for the week I shall place prominently figured Satteens, figured Lawns and figured Linens. I am determined on these to offer the rarest bargains of the season. I shall undersell everyone and invite comparison of quality and prices.

Gas bills contracted with the Atlanta Gas Light Company during the month of June and after, will be at the reduced rate, viz: $1.50 per M net. See special notice,
